HERBERT HOOVER is in Florida and welcome as you may imagine. To have a Californian visit Florida for a vacation is a tribute.

California need not worry, for in this case it is distance that counts. Mr. Hoover is within reach of the crowd from Washington, and that crowd he must deal with until after March 4.

When his work begins Mr. Hoover evidently expects to be a busy President. He will enlarge the working space in the White House, the "offices," probably to make room for specialists in engineering and other work that he has in mind.

Messrs. Hill, Machold and Hilles are said to be "Mr. Hoover's triumvirate to keep New York State in line and hold the gains among independent voters won in the last election."

What happened in the last election is not understood by anybody who imagines that it is simply a case of "independent voters" moving from one party to the other.

A letter by Gen. Von Hindenburg, President of the German Republic, to be sold at auction, says "the Kaiser is no deserter." The armistice stopped the war, says General Hindenburg, and so the Kaiser had no opportunity "to die like a hero at the head of his troops." The Kaiser left for Holland because he did not want to stir up civil war at home.

The Kaiser was no coward, and his regiment of tall sons were not cowards. But they missed many opportunities to "die like heroes at the head of their troops" before the war stopped. That hurt them with Germany. One little wound on one little prince would have helped Hohenzollern popularity.

Chicago packers says 880,000,000 sausages, commonly called "hot dogs," were eaten last year.

Properly made, well cooked, eaten at regular hours, and chewed slowly, to avoid swallowing small pieces whole, the "hot dogs" are good for men. But, eaten between meals, haphazard and rapidly, they contribute to the 50,000,000 cases of American dyspepsia.

A child in Chicago, five years old, born without feet, will be enabled to walk, run and play by surgeons operating on the muscles of the upper leg.

That is an interesting miracle, but there are many others in modern science. Those born deaf and dumb, that never hear a sound, learn to speak and understand the speech of others. With imagination's power, never having seen the earth or the sun or the sound of a friend's voice, they are able to understand beauty and friendship.

That answers those who ask: "Is there really such a thing as a soul?"

Count Piorza, once Italian minister for foreign affairs, anti-Fascist and now out of a job, coming to lecture for the Carnegie peace endowment, says: "The only lesson of the war is that no one won."

That's one lesson, but there is one more important. It teaches that the wise nations prepared for war. If France hadn't been prepared, able to hold the German army back, giving England time to assemble an army, William and his sons might each have a throne in Western Europe now.

Magistrate Ewald, who believes in respect for the lives of others, sentenced 11 speeders to terms in jail and made them walk to prison handcuffed together.

This seems severe, but it is important to impress upon motorists the truth that the man on foot has a right to live.

Success depends ON ORGANIZATION. With the right kind of organization and if you know how to ORGANIZE, DEPUTIZE, SUPERVISE, you are safe.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., supposed to be engaged in a hard fight with Col. Stewart for control of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, is wandering through Egypt, looking at interesting mummies. He knows that his organization is at work.

"Pussyfoot" Johnson, now at Singapore, bound for India, says he means to "dry up all of the East."

Kipling's man, who wanted to be taken "Somewhere east of Suez" where a man can raise a thirst, would not like that.

Johnson even hopes to establish prohibition in Britain, thinking the British will give up beer for the sake of competing industrially with America.

The British will not give up beer. They have a queer idea that men have a right to drink what they want to drink.

TRIPPI 'COULD SHOOT WAY OUT'; PLEA TO JURY

Charles Trippi, Jr., youthful convict, could have escaped from the Charlestown State Prison "any day in the week," if he had wanted to shoot his way out, he declared today in a dramatic personal appeal to the Suffolk Superior Court jury before which he was on trial for the murder of Prison Guard Frederick Pfinger.

Trippi made his statement just after noon as the case went to the jury. No verdict had been reached at 3 o'clock.

Before the jurymen retired, Judge Wilford Gray asked Trippi if he had anything to say.

"Yes, sir," assented the defendant huskily.

White-faced but entirely master of himself, he rose in the dock and faced the 12 men who were to decide whether or no the electric chair should terminate the 18-½-26-year "hit" which he attempted to shorten by his desperate break for freedom last Armistice Day morning.

ADAMS DEFENDS HEAD OF BRAVES AT FINANCE COMMISSION HEARING

"Al" Smith was put on record as a character witness for Judge Emil Fuchs, president of the Boston Braves, by Charles F. Adams, vice-president of the baseball club, at today's public hearing of the Finance Commission which resumed its Sunday sports investigation in Gardner auditorium of the state house.

The following telegram, which Adams said he received yesterday from the former New York Governor and Democratic presidential nominee, was read by the Braves' vice-president:

"I have known Emil F. Fuchs for more than 25 years, during all of which time he was a respectable citizen of New York and much esteemed by bench and bar, as well as by leading citizens of both political parties. ALFRED E. SMITH

Adams also read messages of similar tone from Mayor Walker of New York, and from more than 60 other public officials, merchants, lawyers, judges, clergymen, university professors, prosecuting officers and baseball magnates.

These he had received, he said, in response to solicitations by him in an effort to counteract attacks on Judge Fuchs' reputation made at previous sessions of the Finance Commission's investigation.

Branding as "vicious falsehoods" all the accusations made against his associate, Adams made a spirited defense of Fuchs in his own behalf.

FRED T. FIELD NAMED SUPREME COURT JUDGE

Fred Tarbell Field of 36 Fairmount ave., Newton, vice-president of the Boston Bar Association, was named by Governor Allen today as justice of Supreme Court to take the seat left vacant by the death of Justice Henry King Braley.

The new justice is a specialist in tax and corporation law and sat in many important cases as master, appointed by the Supreme Court, the last being in the suit over the new South Station and Boston Garden construction.

Judge Field is a former assistant attorney-general, serving under Atty.-Gens. Herbert Parker, Dana Malone and James Swift.

He is also a former member of the executive committee Massachusetts Bar association, is a member of the American law institute and since 1926 has been a fellow of Brown university.

In 1919 when the heaviest of the litigation relative to the large war taxes was opened by the Treasury Department, Judge Field was a member of the U. S advisory tax board.

The new justice was born at Springfield, Vt., December 24, 1876. He was graduated from Brown in 1900 and from Harvard law school in 1903, being admitted to the Massachusetts bar in the same year.

He is a nephew of former Chief Justice Willbridge A. Field of the Massachusetts Supreme court, who presided from 1890 to 1900.

HURT IN 3-STORY LEAP AT CAMBRIDGE FIRE

One man was seriously injured in a leap from a third story window and several persons were driven out when fire of undetermined origin broke out today in a three-story dwelling in Elm st., East Cambridge.

The fire started in the room of Daniel Carroll, who leaped through the glas of a window and hurtled 40 feet to the frozen ground, where he was found unconscious and taken to the Cambridge Municipal hospital.

Two alarms were sounded for the blaze, which drove to the street Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Fratus, Mrs. Mary Rose and Mrs. Mary Burke. The damage was estimated.

BONES OF SKELETON TO BE ANALYZED BY STATE

By BERT FORD.

Nashua, N. H., Jan. 23—The parts of the skeleton of a young woman found in the attic of the old Union block at Main and High sts. were sent to Concord today to be analyzed by State Chemist Charles D. Howard.

This action followed discovery of part of a skull and also a right forearm bone in another part of the same building.

Police had been anxiously awaiting discovery of the skull to establish identity of the supposed murder victim, but Medical Referee Stillman G. Davis, upon viewing the portion that was found, declared it had no connection with the right leg and other bones found in the attic.

It now appears, police say, that there were two skeletons in the building, one that of a victim of illegal surgery or murder and the other a specimen discarded by some doctor, dentist or other scientist.

The portion of skull found today

MRS. TILTON DEMANDS DRYS FORM 3RD PARTY

"Dry" Republicans of the state were called upon today to bolt the G. O. P. and form a third party in the event that the Massachusetts Senate sends a memorial to Congress asking for repeal of the 18th amendment.

The call was sounded by Mrs. Elizabeth Tilton of Cambridge, speaking before the Middlesex county convention of the W. C. T. U. at the Y. M. C. A. in Cambridge.

Referring to the resolve filed by the Constitutional Liberty League, urging the Senate to comply with the wishes of the voters as expressed in the liquor referendum taken in the election in November, Mrs. Tilton said:

"Now all the world knows the drys, obeying orders of their national bodies, did not generally vote on this futile referendum. It was a Democratic vote with a smattering of wet Republicans that appeared on the ballot.

"This being so, I say advisedly that should a Republican Senate under the Republican leadership of Pres. Gaspar G. Bacon ignore the

AL SMITH CHARACTER WITNESS FOR FUCHS IN HUB INQUIRY

ADAMS DEFENDS PRESIDENT OF BRAVES AT HEARING

Among other things, the witness stamped as a lie the rumor, repeated on the witness stand by Daniel J. Carroll, fight manager, that Fuchs had told his story of solicitation of a bribe by city councillors as a subterfuge to mulct $100,000 from his own associate, Adams.

Other serious allegations had been made against Judge Fuchs by Councillor William G. Lynch, the man whom the baseball magnate most directly accused.

'Fuchs a Gentleman and Charitable to a Fault'

Adams' statement was as follows:

"Boston, by reputation, is a city of true sportsmanship and high ideals, and, as such, will not long permit to go unrebuked any injustice or unfair play.

"During my brief absence from the city I find that unfounded as well as untruthful charges directed at my associate, Judge Emil E. Fuchs, president of the Boston National League Baseball Club, were permitted in evidence at a public hearing, and, in consequence, broadcast by publication throughout the length and breadth of the land.

"To me Judge Fuchs has proven himself a gentleman, charitable to a fault, and so modest by nature that he has not fully replied to these charges.

"A sense of personal responsibility has prompted me to act in this matter, knowing full well he will not attempt to establish in his own behalf a life-long record of honorable and admirable conduct.

"Immediately on my arrival in New York I was acquainted with the developments during my absence, and the spirit of justice would not permit me to remain idle. In a few hours the indorsements furnished herewith were obtained, and I know from that brief experience, were it necessary, that hundreds of similar testimonials can be added.

Testimonials From All Classes of Citizenship

"From civic leaders from bench and bar, from banker, church and settlement worker, irrespective of race or creed, poured forth unreservedly tributes of confidence gained from long acquaintance and association. From youth to manhood it was the same story of Emil Fuchs, flawless, lovable, kind and charitable—in magnificent tribute.

"We, of Boston, should gladly support and defend such men whether in sport or in business or in civic life, in our efforts to make this world a better and happier place in which to live.

"The results of the hurried effort in behalf of my friend are ample answer to any charges made involving him, including the statement that he intended to mulct me of $100,000 for his own enrichment. Such a statement, as well as the other charges, were vicious falsehoods. Judge Fuchs' ideals never have changed during our acquaintance, and from the start of the Sunday baseball campaign he consistently maintained in this principle, 'not a dishonest penny to be given or spent directly or indirectly.'

Schwab, Fr. Duffy and Others Speak for Fuchs

Among the senders of messages, read by Adams were Charles M. Schwab, U. S. Senator Robert Wagner, Mayor John F. Hylan, Josh Benton of New York County John A. Heydler, president of the National League; Father Duffy, renowned chaplain of the 27th division; Monsignor Curry, of the Holy Name Church of New York City; U. S. Atty. Emory R. Buckner, of New York; Herbert Bayard Swope, until recently editor of the New York World; Col. Robert Guggenheim, of the Guggenheim Foundation, and Supreme Court Justice Wasservoegel, of New York.

The messages include the following:

"After many years of acquaintance with Judge Emil E. Fuchs in official and private life in New York, I can attest to his splendid integrity, high standard of conduct and fine reputation for veracity.—James J. Walker, Mayor."

"I have known Judge Fuchs for a generation. During his career in New York, professionally, judicially, as deputy attorney general and in private life, am glad to attest to his high character and integrity, and to my confidence and faith in his veracity and fairness.—Josh B. Banton, district attorney of New York County: Judge Charles C. Nott, Jr., Judge Cornelius F. Collins, Judge Joseph Mulqueen, Judge Morris Koenig, Judge Otto Rosalsky of the Court of General Sessions; Justice Isidore Wasservogel of the Supreme Court and Samuel S. Koenig, former secretary of state.

"I have known Judge Fuchs for a number of years. He and I are members of the Lotos and Salmagundi clubs but he had always been held in high esteem in New York and here in the good reputation.—Robert W. Wagner, U. S. Senator from New York."

"I know Judge Fuchs well. I have a high regard for him and he bears an excellent reputation as to honesty and veracity in private and public life.—Rev. Francis P. Duffy."

"Kindly add my testimony of the splendid personal worth of Mr. Fuchs, always square, above-board, and always ready to help others. Our friendship is existing for about 15 years.—Monsignor Curry."

"I have never known any one of higher character or better reputation and more veracious than Judge Emil Fuchs. I have just heard of the shameful attack on his character and in all the years that I have known him he has never done a single unkind act or anything to warrant even reproach.—Robert Guggenheim."

Rules That Fuchs Must Read His Own Statement

There were about 400 in the auditorium when the hearing began, half filling the hall. State police were on duty to preserve order. The audience was told that smoking would not be permitted and the police were ordered to eject anyone who broke the rule.

Councillor Lynch, Daniel J. Carroll and their attorney, Joseph P. Walsh, were early arrivals, and Adams arrived with Attorney R. E. Goodwin.

Chairman Dowling—During the closing days of the previous sessions certain allegations were made against the character of Judge Fuchs and Mr. Adams, and inasmuch as both of the men were out of the city at the time, one of them out of the country, the commission thought it only fair that they be invited to appear at this meeting to make a statement.

Attorney Goodwin told the chairman he represented Adams and Fuchs and that the latter authorized him to read a statement.

He was interrupted by Chairman Dowling, who asked: "Is Mr. Fuchs in Boston?"

"I don't know," replied the attorney. "I will have to ask Mr. Adams."

Adams said: "I cannot say. I was with him in Boston up until 3 o'clock yesterday at the Copley-Plaza."

Chairman Dowling: "The commission believes that Mr. Fuchs should appear here in person inasmuch as he has been or is now in Boston, and that he should personally read his statement."

Attorney Goodwin: "Judge Fuchs does not want to dignify the accusations made against him by putting in an appearance. The reports about him were nothing but rumors and he desired me to tell the commission so."

Chairman Dowling adhered to his ruling and instructed Adams to read his own statement only.

SKELETON CLUE IN LETTER

is highly polished and the upper section had been removed as with a surgeon's saw. The lower jaw is missing. There are four teeth on the right upper jaw and three on the left side. The front teeth are broken off.

Even an unskilled eye can note the contrast between this polished exhibit and the leg bones found in the attic. To the le gbones clung dried veins, ligaments and remnants of flesh. The condition of the forearm bone found today is similar to that of the section of skull.

Although Dr. Davis sent the earlier discoveries to the state chemist today, he did not bother to send the skull and forearm.

"We had better obtain a complete chemical analysis of the leg bone," said the medical examiner. "I cannot see any connection between the first bones discovered and that of the skull and the right forearm bone found this morning."

These kull was found under the second floor near a chimney and the arm bone was nearby.

Police Inspector Edward McCarthy, who was at the scene, took the objects to Medical Referee Davis for examination.

Effort was also begun to ascertain who had an office in the past in the part of the building where these bones had lain for an indefinite number of years.

Police were frankly surprised by the appearance of the skull and arm bone.

The authorities hope that further discoveries will follow and lead to a solution of the mystery.

"I don't know what to make of it, because this skull apparently hasn't the least connection with the right leg bones," said Police Chief Irving F. Goodwin. "There is no doubt that the leg bones had flesh on them when they were put in the attic.

"Probably we will never be able to solve the mystery. It is possible that somebody knowing that there was a skeleton in the building, dismembered another woman's body and secreted the parts there under cover of the fact that there was another skeleton.

"The different bones indicate that one man's guess is as good as another's We are up against a stone wall, but we hope to find other bones in short order and perhaps get more light on the mystery."

The outside world must have its baseball and liquor scandals, but just now the 28,000 inhabitants of this thrifty New Hampshire city are intensely interested in ascertaining, if possible, the identity of the church attic victim.

Because years have obliterated the trail, the local and State authorities may never be able to solve the mystery, but if they fail, it will not be due to lack of effort and enterprise.

Everything possible has been done since Saturday by Chief of Police Irving F Goodwin and Chief Inspector Edward F. McCarthy.

The police appeal to the public for aid. They welcome any scrap of information that may throw light on the puzzling case. They are making a careful checkup of former occupants of the old building and are searching the records for any missing girl.

In this feature of their inquiry they hope to be assisted by police departments of neighboring cities, who may have records of young women and girls who mysteriously disappeared with the past 10 to 15 years or more recently.

Official theories today were divided between murder and possible illegal surgery. Finding of an assortment of small human bones hidden in a wall on the third landing and parts of the victims spinal vertebrae under a small flight of enclosed stairs on the second landing leading to an annex of the building, strengthened the theory that the body was dismembered before concealment.

Public interest is apparent on every street corner and in every public gathering-place. It was also shown by the personal and telephone inquiries pouring in at police headquarters and in the letters received.

A letter on dainty pink stationery, printed to conceal the chirography of the sender, received today, told of a couple that occupied one of the apartments in the old building. It read as follows:

"Mr. McCarthy: There was a man and woman who had the room where the bones was found. They had a fight one night and he moved out of the block, and the floor looked as if it had been taken up. There was papers all over it. I thought it funny at the time, but never thought any more about it till I see that they was strangers in Nashua and the woman had an (words here deleted by police.)

'I DON'T RECALL SHOOTING!' SAYS MRS. WILSON

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Mrs. Esther Wilson, Washington society matron and big game huntress, took the stand in her own defense today at her trial for shooting her husband, Dallett Wilson, last March.

She said when she went to his Fifth ave. office, she was so excited she could not remember shooting him. Wilson was shot twice and was in a hospital for two months. He testified earlier in the trial that he believed the shooting was accidental.

CARRIED REVOLVER

Mrs. Wilson said she had carried a revolver "for a long, long time" for the protection of her jewels and added that she had been held up once. She then told of her visit to her husband's office the day of the shooting.

"I sat down across from his desk," she said. "He was very rude to me. I told him I wanted to have an excellent reputation as to honesty and veracity in private and public life.—Rev. Francis P. Duffy."

"Kindly add my testimony of the splendid personal worth of Mr. Fuchs, always square, above-board, and always ready to help others. Our friendship is existing for about 15 years.—Monsignor Curry."

"I have never known any one of higher character or better reputation and more veracious than Judge Emil Fuchs. I have just heard of the shameful attack on his character and in all the years that I have known him he has never done a single unkind act or anything to warrant even reproach.—Robert Guggenheim."

She then began weeping. Finally, she declared, brokenly:

"I don't remember shooting him."

ISSUES CALL FOR STATE WELFARE MEETING

A. C. Ratshesky, chairman of the advisory board of the State department of public welfare, today issued a call to number of prominent private citizens to meet at the State House Friday afternoon to formulate plans for carrying out the welfare recommendations made by Governor Allen in his inaugural address.

Problems to be discussed include a new children's building at the hospital for non-pulmonary tuberculosis; a new hospital unit for the aged chronic sick; an addition to the State cancer hospital; continued development of the new Metropolitan Hospital for the mentally sick; a survey of crippled children; additional protection of the milk supply; increasing the compulsory school age from 14 to 15 years, and a revision of the child welfare laws.

SLAY 3 MARINES IN NICARAGUA

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 23 (AP)—Latest advices from northern Nicaragua state that three United States marines of a patrol of seven whilst clashed with outlaws northeast of Yali in the department of Jinotega on Monday were killed.

Those killed were Privates Everett A. Rector of Des Moines, Ia., whose death had previously been reported; Rastus Collins of Lyons Ga., and George T. Oswill of Miami Fla.

First word of Rector's death was brought to marine headquarters by a newspaper, while additional advices received today told of the deaths of the other two. Only the most meager details have been received of the clash.

Steps toward declaring martial law in the northern departments are being taken by the Nicaraguan authorities and the training of volunteers for service in the region is going on rapidly.

The appointment of Miss Marion Francis Brown as advertising manager to succeed Benjamin F Felt who recently resigned is announced by R. H. Stearns Co. Miss Brown went to Stearn's two years ago from Conrad & Co., here, where she had been advertising manager for three years. Her earlier experience was gained with Jordan Marsh Co.

Miss Brown is the only woman director of the Advertising Club of Boston, and a past president of the Women's Advertising Club.

GARRETT AND HIGGINS BACK OUSTED RUM ANALYST

The split in the ranks of the Boston police liquor squad, which came to a head at a conference in the State House yesterday, will work to the advantage of William Crawford, junior state chemist, ousted on charges of falsifying analyses of confiscated liquor.

Special Officers Oliver P. Garrett, leader of one unit of the liquor squad, and Walter Higgins, custodian of seized liquor, will testify to Crawford's honesty and integrity when he appears before the Health Department Council on a hearing to be granted to him.

The two officers will state that during the last eight years Crawford has handled 90 per cent of the analyses of liquor turned over to the Health Department by the liquor squad, and that up to the present time there has been no criticism of his work.

They will further point out through the production of records that at least two analyses of questionable liquor were not made by Crawford at all but by another junior chemist who is a woman.

Crawford has laid his troubles at the door of Sergt. William H. McKenzie, former chauffeur for Commissioner of Police Herbert A. Wilson, who leads a second section of the liquor squad.

No complaints ever were made against conditions at the State House by members of the liquor squad until after the split in the squad which developed last spring between the outfits of Garrett and McKenzie, it was said today.

The split started, it was learned, when McKenzie led the combined forces of the liquor squad in a gambling raid in the South End, where it was discovered three Boston policemen in plain clothes were among the gamblers.

When the time came to make the arrests the three gambling policemen were missing and a member of Garrett's outfit inquired what had become of them. Later two of the missing men were found hiding in a closet and they are alleged to have told Garrett's squad that they were instructed to hide by one of Sergt. McKenzie's followers.

Garrett's men demanded that all be suspended or move of those who were gambling, and trouble started, which resulted in the removal of two of the most valuable members of the squad, Thomas Daley and Peeler Fortin.

The two men had refused to meet demands made by John H. Merrick, secretary to Commissioner Wilson, that they change their reports, which differed considerably from those made out by McKenzie's squad on the happenings at the gambling raid. On each occasion when the demand was made that the reports of Garrett's followers be changed they were returned with the notation: "No change necessary."

MADE PRIVATE TESTS.

It was also learned that some of the liquor which is now under fire in the State House investigation was seized in a series of raids in the South End, including places in Washington st., Upton st., Harrison ave. and Dover st. and Springfield and Washington sts.

These raids were made by Capt. John Mullen, Sergt. Max Thormer, recently promoted to lieutenant and assigned to Station 10; Sergt. John Gale and three patrolmen, all of Station 5.

In each instance some of the seized liquor was saved and a private analysis made of it. These private analyses showed that it was all above 2.75 per cent alcoholic content. One State analysis, it is said, showed less than 2.75 per cent, while a private analysis showed 40 per cent. At least two of these analyses at the State House were made by a woman chemist.

Seek Tribesmen In Death of American

London, Jan. 23 (INS)—The British Colonial Office has instructed its representatives in Iraq to apprehend the Wahabi tribesmen responsible for the murder of the Rev. Henry A. Stilkerd, an American missionary, it was announced today.

Colonial office officials believe that Iraq's recent action in breaking off relations with Great Britain has prompted acts of violence by the Wahabis. The colonial office maintains that the Wahabi tribesmen exercises a mandate over Iraq, the murder took place in territory over which the government of the kingdom of Iraq is responsible.

Urge Booth to Quit

San Francisco, Jan. 23 (AP)—A telegram to Gen. Bramwell Booth, urging him to yield to the Salvation Army's high council and "accept the kindly office to retain your honors and surrender the responsibility to the wisdom of the council and their choice," was dispatched by John L. Mcnab, chairman of the Army's advisory board here.

McNab has been advisory chairman for Western America during the past 14 years.

Plan to Censure Mrs. Willebrandt

Washington, Jan. 22 (INS)—An attempt of minority members of the House prisons investigating committee to censure Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general, for instituting the "spy" system in Atlanta federal prison, will be carried to the floor of the House, it was indicated today.

Representative Boylan (D.) of New York declared he would file a minority report. Representative Bell (D.) of Georgia indicated he would join him. Representative Cooper (R.) of Ohio, speaking for the Republican minority, declared that the "spy" system would not be mentioned in the report.

Guatemala Rebels Face Firing Squad

Guatemala City, Jan. 23 (AP)—Various leaders of the revolt in northern Guatemala have been summarily tried and executed by government forces. Troops are pursuing the rebels who held Quezaltenango for a short time and fled before the approach of government troops, taking all money in sight, public and private, with them.

CAUSE LITTLE TROUBLE ON FIRST DAY

The new "through street" regulation went into effect on Commonwealth ave. today without evidence of undue strain on automobilists or on the special enforcement squad of motorcycle officers.

Bostonians and those who travel through Boston seemed to have cultivated a belief in signs. The yellow and black striped poles on the side street approaches to the "stop" deadlines weren't easily to be overlooked.

Any auto driver could know something was up. Then, when he saw the peremptory "stop" sign itself, he was all set for it.

There was a businesslike buzzing of police motorbikes throughout the restricted area between Arlington st. and Governor sq., but the officers had few offenders to chase.

An occasional absent-minded offender was overhauled, halted, and reprimanded, but, on the whole, the motoring public showed itself easily adaptable—especially to so slight a thing as one more "thou shalt not" in the traffic code.

The new rule is simple. It specifies that, on streets intersecting Commonwealth ave. between Arlington st. and Governor sq., motor vehicles shall come to a stop before crossing the main thoroughfare.

BODIES OF NAVY MEN FOUND

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—The Navy Department was informed today that the bodies of two officers and three enlisted men, drowned last Sunday at Balboa, Canla Zone, have been recovered.

The bodies of Earl D. Tibbetts, fireman, of Haverhill, Mass.; Fred W. Schweimberg, coxswain, of West Orange, N. J., and Herbert D. McDowell, a seaman, of Jacksonville, Fla., were found yesterday.

The bodies of the two officers, Capt. Ralph M. Griswold, commander of destroyer squadron nine of the scouting fleet, and Arthur S. Wrenn, chief machinist, were recovered shortly after the gig collided with a barge and sank.

Capt. Griswold's home was in Sharon, Pa., while that of Wrenn was in Fall River, Mass.

The U. S. S. Niro will sail for Hampton Roads with the bodies next Saturday.

Staff photo shows one of the new stop rule traffic signs on streets that cross Commonwealth ave., between Arlington st., to Governor sq. Starting today, all vehicles entering the avenue must come to a dead stop before doing so. Traffic Officer William R. Reagan (staff photo), stationed at the Dartmouth st. intersection, will be one of the policemen who will help motorists to become accustomed to the new rule the next few days.

TEMPERANCE AWARD STIRS ALL SECTIONS OF NATION

New York, Jan. 23—Tremendous nation-wide interest in the offer of William Randolph Hearst of a $25,000 prize for the best plan as a substitute for prohibition which will achieve real temperance in the United States was further indicated today by the receipt of thousands of additional letters from every corner of the land.

Deep study of the fundamentals of the problem was reflected in communications from widely separated points between the Atlantic and the Pacific and the Great Lakes and the Gulf regions. Some came from remote Western ranches so far from a postoffice that it meant a day's ride on horseback to mail a letter.

Prospective entrants for the $25,000 prize are advised to study the purposes of the contest and to read the seven simple rules of the contest republished in an adjoining column.

The Hearst newspapers desire their millions of readers to understand that the contest represents an earnest effort in behalf of real temperance. The contest has no connection whatever with any partisan organization.

PRAISE OFFER

Following are expressions of opinion on the contest:

GEORGE U. HARVEY, New Borough President for Queens: I think it is a very good idea for Mr. Hearst to offer a $25,000 prize for a true temperance plan. All good citizens, whether they favor prohibition or not, surely believe in temperance. We should be temperate in everything. After reading Mr. Hearst's offer I feel that I can say that the Hearst prize will stimulate people to try to solve the prohibition question. That is why I am in favor of it. All good citizens should try to do their share to help solve the various problems that confront the government in the nation, State and the city.

COL. GRAYSON M. P. MURPHY, famous financier, head of Grayson M. P. Murphy & Co., and former partner of J. P. Morgan & Co: I feel that in offering a prize of $25,000 for the best plan to achieve real temperance Mr. Hearst has done a fine, courageous thing, and I am glad that he has decided to use his powerful influence to awaken the American people to the shameful and dangerous conditions which have resulted from the present law.

NATHANIEL A. ELSBERG, Former New York State Senator and Delegate to the New York State Constitutional Convention:—Mr. Hearst's prize offer has already excited great interest. I have read his telegram on the subject with the keenest attention. He has stated admirably and with the utmost conservatism, which lends force to a picture of conditions which no candid observer can question, the evil results of ten years of prohibition. Any prize offered for a plan that will promote real temperance and respect for law, while at the same time preserving our free institutions, is an excellent thing.

WHERE SHOE PINCHES

THE REV. WILLIAM NORMAN GUTHRIE, Pastor of St. Marks-in-the-Bouwerie, 234 East 11th st., New York: It is the sort of law that is produced through fanaticism. However sincere the makers may have been, they simply lack knowledge and understanding of the country and its people. The 18th amendment is here to stay and we might as well make up our minds to that. Instead, let's go after the Volstead Act—there's where the shoe pinches. The framers of that act interpreted the word "liquor" without consulting a dictionary. The word "liquor" is solely an abbreviation for "distilled liquor," and was never intended to include wines and beer. Yet the Volstead Act foisted on the nation during a period of wartime excitement carries that misinterpretation.

The case is somewhat parallel to the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments, which can never be enforced in the South. The negroes don't want a colored community any more than the whites do. So methods of compromise are found and points are stretched here and there, by those who live in the South, and understand the race question as no one else can. They realize that an attempt to repeal the amendment would be futile. Just so in the case of the Eighteenth Amendment. The present enforcement act will never produce sobriety. Let's drag the Volstead Act into the open and change it into something workable.

THE RIGHT WAY

LOUIS A. CUVILLIER, New York State Assemblyman: The announcement of the prize of $25,000 for a modification plan is a great move on the part of Mr. Hearst. I believe he is going about the thing in the right way. For too many years we have been concerned with enforcement and there has been nothing done. Now is the time for a trial in the other direction. And there are ways in which modification can be effected, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding. For one thing—and something I've been fighting for—it is possible to call a national constitutional convention to consider the question. There has never been any real concentrated discussion by the men who control the wishes of the people of the United States. Such a convention would supply the place and time for such a discussion.

The public is laboring under the misapprehension that the law is a constitutional one, and is, therefore, not to be tampered with. This is ridiculous for more reasons than one. In the first place, the law has proved itself to be unenforceable. In the second place, if it is wrong it can be changed. We are interested in the freedom of the American people. I do not care about liquor, but I do care for freedom, and it is evident that there are millions of other citizens of this country who feel the same way as I do about prohibition.

CALLS LAW A MISTAKE

GEORGE ADE, writer and author: "I agree wholeheartedly and thoroughly with Mr. Hearst's view of the prohibition question. In my opinion, far from being a "noble experiment" prohibition has been nothing more than a ghastly failure. I am neither in politics nor in public life, but I do believe the Eighteenth Amendment is a mistake.

Weds in Secret

MISS GUINNESS ARTIST'S BRIDE

London, Jan. 23 (INS)—Following a whirlwind courtship of three months, Miss Merand Guinness, 24-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Guiness, of New York and London, was married today to Alvaro Guevara, a 35-year-old Chilean artist.

Miss Guinness and Senor Guevara kept their engagement secret until it was revealed by the application for a marriage license.

Miss Guinness is an artist of marked ability. She said she had informed her parents of her coming marriage by mail. She also said they would devote their lives to art.

The Guinness fortune is reputed to be in the multi-millionaire class. The prospective bride's mother is one of London's most prominent hostesses.

Senor Guevara is not prominent as an artist here. Miss Guinness is an amateur artist. The common bond on art is believed to have drawn the two together.

Son of Jello King Has "Started Something"

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—Dudley Field Malone, counsel for Mrs. Frank Woodward, whose estranged husband is in England with their two children whom he abducted in Paris, said today he would sail Friday for Europe and that since "Woodward has started something we'll finish it."

Malone is associated with Nathan Burkan in acting for Mrs. Woodward.

Woodward and his wife have been separated for more than a year, and papers in a divorce action have been served on Mrs. Woodward. Custody of the children, who were in their mother's care in Paris, had not been formally established.

Woodward is from Leroy, N. Y., and is the wealthy son of the founder of the jello business. He is a brother of Donald Woodward, amateur aviator and sportsman, who purchased the monoplane in which Miss Amelia Earhart crossed the Atlantic.

BRIGGS SCORES SMOKE EVIL

Dr. L. Vernon Briggs, urging a tightening up in smoke nuisance laws today before a legislative committee, scored the State itself for maintaining what he described as one of the worst smoke nuisances in the Commonwealth.

He alluded to the State House stacks, and reminded his hearers that Governor Fuller had promised two years ago to have the situation remedied on the theory that the State should set a good example.

Increasing fines and providing jail sentences up to three months for violations of the proposed amendments to the law were urged.

Among others to support the bill were Dr. Vincent Y. Bowditch of Boston and Mrs. Henry Tudor of Cambridge.

BAY STATE FLU INCREASING

Reports today again showed influenza on the increase in Boston, in Massachusetts and throughout the United States.

A total of 461 new cases were reported at the State House from cities and towns of the commonwealth. Tuesday's total was only 360.

The Boston figures for today were 75 new cases and four deaths, totals substantially larger than those of yesterday.

From Washington, D. C., today the census bureau reports a "considerable increase" of influenza all over the country. The national figures were for the week ending January 19.

Rules of Contest

THE purpose of the contest is to obtain a practical plan, as a substitute for prohibition, which will secure better actual temperance conditions, which will be more easily possible of enforcement by State and Federal authorities, which will offer less encouragement to crime and tend less to debauch the public service, and which will not so outrage and violate the fundamental rights and personal liberties of American citizens.

The rules and conditions of the contest are simple and are as follows:

1—Every person is entitled to enter the contest, but no one person may submit more than one plan.

2—The practicable plan proposed as a substitute for prohibition must be set forth in an article containing not more than one thousand words.

3—This contest will close on April 30, 1929, and no plan which has not been mailed and postmarked on or before that date will be considered.

4—The articles submitted in the contest will be judged by a committee of eminent Americans, the personnel of the committee to be announced at a later date.

5—The full prize of $25,000 will be awarded to the contestant submitting the best plan as a practicable temperance substitute for prohibition.

6—If other plans not awarded the first prize shall still be considered worthy of some compensation by the committee, a second prize of $5,000 and other prizes of $1,000 each may be awarded.

7—Articles submitting a plan to be considered in this contest may be sent to the Temperance Contest Committee, care of the editor of any one of the following Hearst newspapers: Albany Times-Union, Atlanta Georgian, Baltimore News, Boston Evening American, Chicago Herald and Examiner, Detroit Times, Los Angeles Examiner, New York American, Omaha Bee-News, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Rochester Journal, San Antonio Light, San Francisco Examiner, Syracuse Journal, Seattle Post-Intelligencer, Washington Herald, Wisconsin News (Milwaukee).

(If you have no objection to publication of your plan, please write "May print" in upper left hand corner of first page.)

BOSTON WOMAN DIES IN STREET

New York, Jan. 23 (Universal)—Mrs. Grace Fuller, 53, of No. 64 Mascot st., Dorchester, Mass., died suddenly of acute indigestion last night before No. 25 Fifth ave.

Mrs. Fuller had come from Boston to visit her brother-in-law and sister, Dr. and Mrs. E. George Payne of No. 45 East Ninth st. Her husband is Joseph W. Fuller attorney in Boston for the London Guaranty Insurance Company.

U. S. Gamblers in Record Play at French Casinos

Paris, Jan. 23 (AP)—Wealthy foreigners in France, especially Americans, risked their money more freely on the gaming tables in 1928 than ever before, say Casino managers.

As proof they point to the fact that profits of the 116 legal casinos in the country last year reached the sum of $16,500,000, an even million more than the previous banner year, 1927.

Letourquet, Deauville and Cannes, the particular happy hunting grounds of English and American gamblers, showed the greatest receipts. Nice, with its six casinos, was a close fourth.

Of the total casino profits, a little more than one-half went to the state revenues. An additional $1,000,000 also went to the state from the taxation on casino admissions and on playing cards.

'14 POINT WIFE' ASKS LIBERTY

San Francisco, Cal., Jan. 23 (AP)—The Examiner says today that Mrs. Virginia Mowbray Whitney of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose "fourteen points of married life" gained her fame, has filed suit for divorce in Reno against Arthur Whitney, paper company executive.

The paper said the marital troubles dated back to 1925, when they separated because Mrs. Whitney contended her husband was cruel. When Whitney sought a reconciliation, Mrs Whitney served him with her fourteen rules for connubial bliss.

The wreck occurred about 300 yards north of the newly constructed overhead highway bridge on a section of the railroad with the Naugatuck river on one side and a mountain on the other. The engine was derailed from some unknown cause and landed upside down.

There were only two cars on the train. The first turned over on its top, partly on the cab of the engine and the tender. Fire broke out in the car, but was quickly extinguished. The second car remained on the track. All the injured and those killed were in the first car. Mrs. Wood crawled to safety from the demolished passenger car through the cab of the engine.

The body of Engineer Burns, who had 50 years of service with the company, was taken from the wreck about an hour after the crash. It was terribly scalded by steam.

The second coach, which remained on the rails, was damaged only at the front end.

Fireman Shortell was making the run as a substitute for the regular fireman, who is ill.

The train was in charge of W. J. Rock, Bridgeport, another veteran employe of the road.

Two Die as Fast Train Hits Another

Mounds, Ill., Jan. 23 (AP)—Two trainmen were killed, two were injured and an undetermined number of passengers suffered minor injuries when the Floridan, fast Illinois Central passenger train from Chicago to Florida, crashed into a freight train.

The accident occurred when the passenger train, 20 minutes late, struck the freight train as it pulled off a siding onto the main line. The engine of the passenger train went into the ditch and several coaches of the all-Pullman train left the rails, but remained upright.

"We may not be strong at first, but at least we can be an island surrounded by the wetness of both parties where Mr. Hoover can stand when he comes to Massachusetts.

RESOLUTION OFFERED

"Sacrificed again and again to the 20 per cent wet element of the Republican party, we will form a nationally-minded third group with a ticket of our own. What can we do but turn at last and form a seperate party?

"I hope the Republicans are not going to force the drys out of their party, but I say to the women in the churches of Massachusetts, should a State Republican Senate with a Republican president take its instructions from the Tammany Democrats and pass that wet memorial it will be the unpardonable sin.

"Should it happen, 'to your tents, dry women of Massachusetts."

A resolution against the memorial was presented to the convention following the speech of Mrs. Tilton.

Methodists Want Dry Issue Left to Hoover

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—The board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church today amplified its previous expression of opinion that the prohibition unit could not use $25,000,000 wisely at the present time, in a statement which dealt with reported conflict within dry organizations.

"It seems in the present instance there is an appearance of conflict of opinion where fundamentally there is no difference," the statement said.

Expressing the opinion that the policy of all temperance organizations was "to put entire confidence in Mr. Hoover, a prohibitionist elected by the prohibitionists of the country," the statement continued:

"Mr. Hoover's policy which we presume will be based upon the investigation which he indicates will be made, must perhaps be allowed to develop before the exact size of large additional appropriations can wisely be determined.

In the meantime, provision by Congress of additional funds for specific purposes is desirable, but it is hardly probable that such requirements will aggregate $25,000,000 until they can be based upon a thorough understanding of the needs of the various agencies being used by the Government in enforcement."

More people than ever now enjoy walking—

"Since Coward Came to Town"

Many who loathed walking now love it. Hundreds of women to whom shopping was a fearful ordeal of paining, aching feet now enjoy it immensely. Thousands who rode even for short distances are now walking long distances because they like it.

That's all since Coward came to town. Because Coward brought a new kind of shoe store. A more comfortable kind of shoe. A more capable staff of skilled fitters. And the feet of a large percentage of a whole city have been improved because of it!

For Coward shoes are comfortable! Thousands of feet are comfortable! . . . Because Coward came to town.

DEMAND TARIFF CUT FOR 'GOOD 5-CT. CIGAR'

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—In its consideration of tariff revision, the House ways and means committee today turned its attention from hearings on an article of especial interest to the housewife—sugar—to one which in these modern days concerns both sexes of many households—tobacco.

A plea for a good five-cent cigar was made by manufacturers' representatives, who requested a reduction in the duty on sumatra wrappers from $2.10 to $1.50 a pound.

Harvey L. Hirst of Philadelphia, representing the Bayuk Cigars, inc, said that to bring the five-cent cigar back to its pre-war popularity, a lower duty was required on imported wrappers.

Hirst added that no wrapper was produced in this country suitable for a good quality five-cent cigar.

Asked by Representative Crisp, Democrat, Georgia, if he did not believe the farmer entitled to the same protection as the manufacturer, Hirst said he did, but "not at the expense of the public."

Jacob Mazer, a Detroit manufacturer, contended "the more relief we can get on the wrapper, the more we can afford to pay the tobacco farmer for filler."

Speaking, he said, for 5000 producers of tobacco, Pearson Ela, on behalf of the Northern Wisconsin Co-operative Tobacco Growers' Association, urged reduction on the ground that it would increase the demand for the cheaper filler produced grown in Wisconsin and benefit the growers of that State.

All in Family Are Sent to Prison for 5 Years

Lanair, Mo., Jan. 23 (AP)—An entire family was sentenced to five years in the Missouri penitentiary for chicken theft here.

The defendants, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Irwin, and their three sons, Galva, 22; Clinton, 19, and Joe, 17, were charged with the theft of 1200 chickens during the last few months. Circuit Judge Hendricks sentenced each to five years in prison.

FOREIGN STARS 'TAKE EXIT' AT HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1929, Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23—The exodus of the foreign talent has started. Those players who came so jubilantly to Hollywood, and who became such factors in both the social and artistic life of Hollywood, are now getting ready to return to their home countries.

Lya De Putti, who really has had very little opportunity here in this country, leaves almost immediately for London, where she will star in "The Informer" for British National.

Maria Corda is another foreigner who has accepted an offer to make a picture abroad. Conrad Veidt is leaving Universal, and that, I assume, means that he, too, will return to U. F. A.

Although there have been strenuous denials that Emil Jannings has any intention of forsaking Hollywood, those who are close to him insist that at the expiration of his contract with Paramount, he will be in the caravan of returning actors.

Fejos, who is directing "Broadway" for Universal, will go to Germany as soon as he finishes this picture. That doesn't mean, of course, that Mr. Fejos is disappearing permanently, for I rather think Universal has something to do with his going abroad to make a picture.

EDGAR SELWYN and his charming wife are now in our midst. They are here on business. Edgar who is a brother-in law of Nicholas Schenck, head of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and himself one of New York's most successful producers, is going to have a try at making talkies for M. G. M. He will start producing and writing shorts and later do some of his own plays.

Before the lure of the stage proved so strong that he dropped writing to produce plays, Mr. Selwyn was one of Broadway's most successful playwrights. Later he and his brother, Arch, joined forces with Samuel Goldwyn in forming the Goldwyn Company. Mrs. Selwyn, who was Ruth Wilcox, is having tests made and there is a possibility that she may play in some of her husband's pictures.

THERE is a tendency these days to take an old-fashioned drama and revive it as a talkie, a natural tendency perhaps, because the talkies are so new that everyone is eager to have a try at them. Norma Talmadge, however, has decided against "the sign on the door" as not being the type of play she wishes to do at this time. Norma is reticent about her plans.

"It will be so long before we make a picture that I really would rather not say anything," said Norma.

But from another source I learned that there is talk of reviving "Smilin' Thru" with dialogue. "Smilin' Thru" was one of Norma's most successful pictures, when it was produced some years ago. Gilbert Roland, who recently signed a new contract, will play opposite her.

ONE of the big directorial plums of the year is undeniably "Burlesque." All of the high-powered and successful directors have been sitting around and waiting to see who would be given that assignment. It's all settled that John Cromwell and Eddie Sutherland are to combine their talents and see what they can do for us in the way of a snappy talkie. Cromwell with his stage experience and Eddie with his movie technique, ought to be able to do pretty well.

CAROL LOMBARD is out of the cast of "Dynamite," Cecil De Mille's picture, through no fault of the young lady and no fault of the camera either. Pathe just couldn't wait for the De Mille picture, and since they had planned to give Miss Lombard the leading feminine role in "High Voltage," starring William Boyd, it was a case of either call her home or go out and get a stranger. You have heard the story about "look out for your own interests?" Well, that is what happened.

ACCUSED TURNS ON ACCUSER AND THEN—

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP)—Judge Harry S. McDevitt, president judge of common pleas court, openly denounced the special grand jury investigating police corruption for its "demoralization of the Philadelphia police force through the testimony of self-confessed jail birds."

"I object to this demoralization of our police force by inspiring in it the fear that any self-confessed jail bird who points his finger at a policeman can secure that policeman's suspension," said Judge McDevitt.

"It is getting so that 24 hours after a man is arrested he can turn around and say that a year ago he gave the policeman who now arrested him a $20 gold piece for a Christmas present and his word is taken against that of the officer of the law. Our police force compares favorably with that of other cities. Why should its members, 90 per cent of whom I am sure are honest, suffer such unwarranted humiliation?

"A grand jury sitting six months or so can go into eternity can do, little to prevent crime if it doesn't bring about the conviction of the criminal."

DRY SHOOTING TRIAL TEST OF U. S. POWER

Elmira, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—The legal battle between New York State and the U. S. Government to decide the fate of two coast guardsmen, Boatswain Frank Bock and Glen Jennings, charged with manslaughter in the fatal shooting May 8 of Jacob D. Hanson, secretary of Niagara Falls Lodge of Elks, opened today with a full jury.

Bickering between United States Attorney Richard H. Templeton and District Attorney Raymond A. Knowles marked the selection of the twelve jurors from a panel of 50. Vigorous objection by Prosecutor Knowles to the challenge of six talesmen because they were Elks, was overruled by Federal Judge John R. Hazel and they were excused. Sixteen were excused by the State and 13 by the Government, in addition to the six Elks.

The outcome of the trial is regarded as of far-reaching importance to prohibition enforcement.

Hanson was fatally shot on Lewiston Hill, near Niagara Falls, after he is said to have failed to heed a command to halt given by Chris Dew, member of a coast guard patrol detachment on the watch for bootleggers. Hanson, it is alleged, mistook the guardsman for a bandit and drove on. He was shot by Jennings.

Dew was not indicted, but Jennings and Bock were, the latter because he ordered his men to shoot anyone failing to halt at command, it is alleged. Thirteen witnesses have been subpoenaed, among them an attorney to whose home Hanson was taken after the shooting, and two men who claimed their automobile was fired upon before the Hanson shooting.

Says Statler's Death Ends $400,000 Suits

New York, Jan. 23—Federal Judge Knox ruled that the $400,000 damage actions which followed the sinking of the late E. M. Statler's houseboat Miramar in Southern waters two years ago with the loss of her crew of 12, had been abated by the death of the magnate.

The suits were brought on behalf of dependent relatives of the Miramar's crew and the decision means they can collect nothing.

Donates His Body to Science to Benefit Some Poor Fellow

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—A note requesting that his body be turned over to Cornell University Medical College for research was left by Howard W. Young, who committed suicide by poison in his room at the York Hotel.

In his note Young said he had suffered from intestinal trouble for several years and had tried many doctors without success. "Maybe," said the note, "by an autopsy they might learn something for some other poor fellow who may be suffering from the same thing."

HOLD FUNERAL OF DOUGHERTY TOMORROW

Funeral services will be held tomorrow morning for William L. Dougherty, assistant managing editor of the Boston Daily Advertiser and formerly city editor of the Boston Evening American, who died suddenly at the age of 50 at his home, 101 Lowell rd., Watertown.

A requiem mass will be sung in St. Luke's Church, Lexington st., Waverly, at 9 o'clock. Interment will be in the family lot in St. Luke's Cemetery, Westboro.

Many newspapermen, to whom news of his death came as a shock, are planning to attend the funeral services. Among them will be men who were associated with him when he worked on the Boston Daily Advertiser, the Boston Herald, Boston Post, Boston Journal and the Boston Evening American.

RECAPTURE 20 OF SING SING CONVICTS

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 23 (AP)—Frank Hawkes, long term prisoner who with two others escaped from Sing Sing last night, was recaptured today at Phillips Manor, two and a half miles from the prison.

The capture of Hawkes left only one of the escaped convicts at large. He is George Price, 25, of New York, serving 20 years to life for murder. Roger Evans, 22, of New York, under sentence of 10 years for robbery, was captured last night shortly after the escape.

Hawkes, 30 years old, of Brooklyn, who was serving 20 to 40 years for robbery, was captured by Keeper Paul Wilson of Sing Sing on the tracks of the New York Central Railroad. Hawkes had a bullet wound in his wrist inflicted when a guard fired on him and his companions as they went over the iron fence.

Evans was captured last night at Sparta, four miles south of the prison, making his way along the railroad track.

A posse of 100 guards and officers was searching the countryside in the vicinity of the prison for Price.

PLAN TO BURY HARDING PET

Instead of being preserved to posterity by a taxidermist, "Laddie Boy," pet of the late President Harding, will be buried with due ceremony, it was announced today.

The Harding Memorial Society had requested permission of Harry L. Barker, secret service man, who had cared for the dog since Harding died, to take the dog to a taxidermist. "Laddie," however, had grown a bit lean and scrawny of late, and his master and mistress couldn't quite feel that his memory should be perpetuated in such a way.

The dog died at the Barker home, 42 Elliot st., West Newton. He had been ailing from old age for many months.

When he first came to West Newton, "Laddie Boy," was a well-known figure in the neighborhood. Friendly by nature and handsome in bearing, he became a general pet of the children living near the Barker home, and was frequently seen playing about the house.

HUB REALTORS BOOST N. E.

Birmingham, Ala., Jan. 23—Governor Bibb Graves today welcomed the Boston delegates and others attending the annual business meeting of the National Association of Real Estate Boards here. After his address the first general session of the convention was held.

The Boston delegates are busy boosting the Hub and New England. They took turns passing out information about Boston in preparation for the June convention of the association.

Forest W. Norris is actively promoting the project and attempting to get the delegates to spend their entire vacation period in the vicinity of Boston. Maurice Reidy attended the closed meeting, while other members of the Massachusetts crowd toured the city as guests of the Birmingham Real Estate Board.

A party of the realtors, including most of the Boston men, took a horseback ride through Birmingham's famous bridle paths on the adjoining hill tops.

John H. Devine, Boston attorney and president of the Vinebrook Hunt Club at Lexington, Mass., was greatly impressed with the ruggedness and beauty of the country. Devine is attending the convention as guest of Charles Lee, Boston realtor. Lee was present at the executive meeting of the realtor secretaries' division.

Canada Editor Held for Talking Yiddish

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 23 (AP)—An editor of a Communist weekly was under arrest on a charge of disorderly conduct today for making an address in Yiddish in defiance of a police order that all public meetings be conducted in the English language.

Phillip Halpern, editor of Kumpf, was arrested as he spoke from the aisle of a local theater where Lenin memorial services were being held. Riots and jeers followed the arrest and speakers criticised the police order. The order also prohibits "disorderly or seditious reflections on our form of government, the king or any constituted authority."

Says Bulgars Want an Italian Queen

Rome, Jan. 23 (AP)—Il Tevere today quoted former Minister Muchanoff, visiting Rome, as saying Bulgarians desire an Italian queen. (There have been rumors that King Boris would marry Princess Giovanni of Italy).

The paper quoted M. Muchanoff as saying: "According to the present constitution the queen conserves her native religion, the heir to the throne to have the religion of the majority of his people. Royal marriages for political reasons are out of date. Even a king has a right to choose a woman he loves."

Frees 20-Year Driver Accused of Speeding

Charged with driving an auto 32 miles an hour on Old Colony ave., Wallace E. Clough of East Milton, in South Boston Court today, said he has been operating motor vehicles since 1909, never had an accident, and never has been arrested or in court before. Judge William J. Day placed the complaint on file.

Eagerness Shown in This Handwriting

By LOUISE RICE
Noted Graphologist

"DEAR MISS RICE:

"I am a young fellow of 22. Just at present am employed as a soda dispenser but would rather be traveling

"Yours truly,

"Charles, Jamaica Plain."

At present an expert Soda Dispenser but rather be Traveler

Yes, Charles, but just traveling is not a career, is it? Your handwriting shows me that you are thinking of the pleasure of traveling a good deal more than you are of doing anything special while you do it.

Your letter formations show that eagerness to have your own way is strong, and that you have never yet taught yourself to be quite as steady and dependable as you might.

Don't think that these things are not pertinent to your questions. You have to be pretty good from many standpoints before you can make good in any traveling position. You see, many other lads have the same idea that you have!

On the other hand, you really have courage, you really are rather aggressive, you really could stand a lot of hard work if you made up your mind to it. You have some cleverness in speech and have a not unpleasing personality. These elements of character will allow you to do well as a traveling salesman, but you'll have to polish off your manners so they will be a little less aggressive, and you'll have to teach yourself patience.

You have more than the usual pride and I believe this element of character will do a great deal to make you successful.

Try to take up selling "on the road," but take something to sell in which you can be really interested. You need to have a product which is not forcign to your own likes and dislikes. Do not be discouraged if you have a pretty rocky first year. Nearly everyone does have that who tries "the road." You have courage. Use it.

HOW TO DO IT

The Bible has something to say about the meek inheriting the earth. This is a profound truth like many statements in the great book, and shows what a knowledge of human nature the writers of that book had. For the truly meek which is different from the timid or the ineffective have patience, great convictions and real self-control.

Their writing is of the rounded type, with formations which almost deserve the description "curly." The pressure is even, the s and o well closed, the e is the Greek e, the bulbs of letters are large as in "h," and the loops are small.

HUB RAID NETS 250 GALLONS OF LIQUOR

Night clubs and speakeasies which depend for their liquor supply on an establishment in Shawmut st., South End, are in for a drought as a result of a raid by headquarters liquor officers today acting on a "tip" from Superintendent Michael H. Crowley.

Headed by Sergt. Robert Caverly, Officers McInnis, Higgins, Eumson, Richards and Hollein seized 250 gallons of newly made assorted liquors, together with labels and manufacturing paraphernalia, and made two arrests.

Michael Kelly, 27, of Westminster rd., Hyde Park, and John J. Murphy, 49, of Worcester st., South End, who were leaving the house as the police arrived, were charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

The raid, one of the most important made in some time, took place in the heart of the so-called night club district, and was watched by a crowd. Two wagons were required to carry away the seized liquor, and stoppers, labels, wrappers, bottles and five gallons of white oil to kill the disagreeable taste of alcohol. Thirty gallons of "Scotch" was in process of manufacture when the police arrived.

Home-Made, but Ends Bad Cough In a Hurry

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also to aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Put this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and soothes away the inflammation. At the same time it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief even in obstinate bronchial coughs and "flu" coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

TAX REFUNDING VICIOUS, SAYS M'KELLAR

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—In the face of the opposition of Secretary Mellon, Senator McKellar of Tennessee, insisted in the Senate today upon adoption of his proposal to take large tax refund cases out of the hands of the Treasury and turn them over to the board of tax appeals.

He assailed the request of the Treasury for an appropriation of $75,000,000 in the deficiency appropriation bill, to which he seeks to add his amendment, declaring:

CITES COUZENS CASE

"The Treasury comes to Congress and demands $75,000,000 for tax refunds and when we ask 'How are you going to use it?' the Treasury answers 'It's none of your business.'"

The method by which the Treasury refunds taxes, McKellar termed a "vicious system executed in secrecy," and he recalled the attempt of the Treasury to collect more than $10,000,000 in back taxes from Senator Couzens of Michigan.

"He took it to the board of tax appeals and was not only required to pay the back tax but got a refund," McKellar explained, saying this showed the board is a reputable judicial body not subject to political pressure.

SAYS MELLON "EXCUSE."

McKellar described as "an excuse" the statement of Secretary Mellon that to put refund cases in the hands of the board of tax appeals would overload the board.

Senator Blaine, Republican, Wisconsin, declared that as chairman of the sub-committee which investigated the McKellar proposal he consulted the board and found out that it was well equipped and prepared to take over the refund cases.

That was disputed by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, who said the board had 10,000 cases awaiting disposition and was not in shape to take over the tax refund cases.

College Girls to Be Boys at Annual Prom

Waynesburg, Pa., Jan. 23 (AP)—Residents of this collegiate town are convinced today that the millennium is at hand. The girls of Waynesburg College have decided to make their annual prom strictly girl—that is, there will be no male guests invited.

Half the girls who attend will appear in masculine clothes and act as escorts.

The boys blame the boycott on their habit of bringing outside girls to college affairs.

300 Chicago Roundup Victims Left in Jail

Chicago, Jan. 23 (AP)—Of more than 4000 prisoners taken in Chicago's greatest hoodlum roundup last week-end, only 302 remained in cells today. Police promised these would be released or booked on specific charges before nightfall.

CLEAR SKIPPER IN LOSS OF 14

Not only was Capt. J. F. Ross of the Boston-owned steamship William A. McKenney absolved today of blame in the loss of 14 of his crew in a hurricane last August, but the board of inspectors sitting on the case praised him highly for skillful seamanship in a difficult situation.

The 14 men were washed overboard off the Mexican coast while the steamship was en route from San Diego, Calif., to Balboa, Canal Zone.

Capt. Charles Lyons and Capt. John Stewart, United States steamboat inspectors in the Boston district, sat on the case.

Train Strikes Auto; 3 Dead, 1 May Die

Dayton, O. Jan. 23 (AP)—Three persons were killed and a fourth probably fatally injured early today when an automobile was struck by a Big Four passenger train.

ENVOYS' LIQUOR IS 'SPILLING'

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—The charge that diplomatic liquor "spills over all legal barriers and is freely bought and sold in Washington," was made in a statement today by Representative Cellar, Democrat, New York, who gave out a letter from Prohibition Commissioner Doran declining to disclose the amount of liquor imported by diplomats. Doran took the position that such a disclosure would constitute a breach of diplomatic immunity. Asserting that "the secrecy makes one suspicious," Cellar said: "It almost confirms my information that at bootleg prices the value of diplomatic liquor runs into the millions."

Foch "Satisfactory"

Paris, Jan. 23 (INS)—The condition of Marshal Ferdinand Foch who has been suffering from heart and kidney trouble, was reported satisfactory today.

New Swindle Costs France $3,500,000

Paris, Jan. 23 (AP)—A new financial scandal, following close on the Gazette Du Franc case, has been discovered in a fraud by which the French treasury is alleged to have been swindled out of $3,500,000 through the disappearance of 40,000 tons of sugar, part of a consignment of reparations in kind turned over to France by Germany.

Belgian, French and British companies are said to have been involved, but only one arrest has been made, that of a French financier, Leon Poliér.

INSTALMENT FIGURES ARE REVEALED

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

U. S. Department of Commerce study just completed "reveals" the fact that the bulk of the auto business is done on the deferred payment plan. Financial dealers make the largest percentage of sales on the instalment plan. The well known disinclination of the New Englander to let the world know intimate details of his business affairs is demonstrated anew by the fact that only 165 of 1101 queried in the Bay State made replies to the department.

General Manager Alfred Reeves of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce presents us with more definite figures regarding retail financing in the automotive industry. These follow:

Alfred Reeves

Per cent new cars sold on time, 58 per cent.

Per cent new trucks sold on time, 33 per cent.

New cars average note at time of purchase, $696.

New trucks average note at time of purchase, $832.

Used cars average note at time of purchase, $295.

Figures by the different experts make interesting comparisons, in this column this week we showed that the research by Prof. R. A. Seligman, who occupies the chair of economics at Columbia, indicated only 55 to 60 per cent of automobiles are bought on the instalment plan. Other estimates hold them from 75 per cent upward. It was not stated whether these figures applied to sales of new cars only or referred to new cars only.

December production (factory sales) of motor vehicles in the United States, as reported to the Department of Commerce, was 295,514 units, of which 267,427 were cars and 27,991 were trucks, compared with 256,935 passenger cars and trucks in November, and 371,731 in December, 1927. The output of passenger cars was down 25 per cent greater than in 1927, while that of trucks was off 17.7, or 16.7 per cent less than the previous year. The heretofore published have revised slightly some months by corrections made by some manufacturers.

Rhode Island, with four Boston and its directorate, continues to lead the world. Directors in Rhode Island, says President Lyman, He added that he believed this true also of the United States. Directors have authorized building at Omaha of quarter million dollar freight terminal. Mr. Gorman says the most serious threat to mid-western railroads is proposed legislation to reduce freight rates on farm products. He said proposal would put most western railroads without materially benefiting any individual farmer.

Mr. Gorman says there is no reason why railroads should fear waterway competition, as there is plenty of traffic for both. He is not worrying because one of these waterways will parallel his road between Chicago and Peoria, because he thinks development will bring factories and develop new tonnage, of which railroads would get the most. He expressed the belief that motor vehicle and airplane competition will be effectually met when railroads give proper attention to the problem.

Story of Gen. Eric Ludendorff exhibited by alleged inventors of a cold-making process, is somewhat reminiscent of what happened a few years ago in New England. This was when another alleged inventor exploited his discovery of a way to extract gold from seawater. Real scientists within the month have reported the surprising discovery that there is a larger percentage of gold in sea-water in certain sections than there is in what dipped from the ocean in buckets.

Present gold production is inadequate to the demand, and it may be that eventually we shall have recourse to sea-water again for the nutritious metal. Other metals than gold are getting relatively scarce. Boston brokers tell us that copper will touch 20 cents soon, with an advance of two or three cents a pound. The growing scarcity of lead is connected some what with increasing demand in connection with railroad electrification plans.

Hornblower & Weeks say today: "The impressive action of the market leaders yesterday confirms our opinion that the present level is due to continue receiving the attention they warrant. Stocks are rapidly with which some of the leaders are advancing, partial acceptance of higher profits may logically be expected during today's trading session."

Chains Take More Active Part in Wholesale Field

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—The second annual convention of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute opened in New York today, raises anew the question whether the jobber is doomed as an essential link in the American distributive system.

In the last five years the mortality among the smaller jobbers has been especially heavy, particularly as large scale retailers and department stores and chain systems took over a larger share of the distributive volume and developed contacts directly with producers. The best judgment of impartial observers seems to be that the old-fashioned, inefficient jobber is doomed. However, the intermediate distributive function will be continued by some agency. There will be a battle to determine who shall take over that work.

Alvin Dodd, director-general of the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute and formerly connected with the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in a statement prepared exclusively for this column, shows clearly how the battle lines are being drawn in the realm of distribution.

"The 'middleman' is a foggy conception," he declared. "Instead, of course, on our human tendency to state any sort of a problem economic, social or otherwise in terms of personality or supposed personality.

"There is an intermediate function of distribution which must be and is being performed—there always will be performed so long as we have centralized production and decentralized consumption.

"Thus the chain store system may act as a middleman or the manufacturer may act as a middleman. Possibilities for doing this are no particularly great and they vary considerably from trade to trade.

In relating the question of the survival of the jobber to the drive for greater efficiency in retailing Mr. Dodd added: "Our prime objective has now become a closer coordination in the movement of merchandise from business man to business man and on to the consumer. While the relation of buyer to seller and of trader to trader still exists, permanent success lies in the direction of straight line movement of merchandise.

"The wholesaler's present problem centers about merging himself is more efficient unit in the line of distribution. Primarily, this means that he must co-operate more earnestly with the retailer, must in fact go back of the retailer. Instead of saying to himself, 'I serve 2000 retailers,' or whatever number it may be, he must say, 'I serve so many thousand customers' and in doing this I have the aid of manufacturers who are consumer-minded and the retailers behind I supply.'

"This implies that the wholesaler must develop two major concerns—a concern with the consumer and a concern with the retailer, a concern meeting those preferences promptly and without wasted motion, and coordinated efforts.

"When we say 'go back' of the retailer, we mean this: Service to the retailer on the part of the wholesaler, giving him what the consumer wants, not giving him what he thinks he wants or what he may be induced by salesmen to think he wants.

ROCKEFELLER LACKS PROXIES

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—With proxies for "less than 45 per cent" of the stock delivered, associates of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., said they were seeking enough more to oust Col. Robert Stewart from the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

The 45 per cent figure became important in the battle for control of the company when it was pointed out at the Rockefeller offices that about 90 per cent of the 9,231,540 shares of the company was expected to be represented in the annual meeting March 7 in Whiting, Ind.

In renewing the fight to "clean house" in the management of the Indiana company, associates of Mr. Rockefeller have assured stockholders that their dividends will not be jeopardized if they throw their lot with the Rockefeller interests and vote for the removal of Stewart.

Thomas Debevoise, an associate of Mr. Rockefeller, made public letters to stockholders in which he said there was no reason to believe that these would be a change in the "past liberal policy" of the management of the company in connection with dividends, cash and stock.

Artloom's Profit Near Half Million

Artloom Corp. reports total net profit of $413,181.54 for the year ended December 31, 1928, after depreciation and reserves for federal taxes. After deducting dividends on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, the 200,000 shares of common stock outstanding earned approximately $1.54 per share. The balance sheet of the corporation as of December 31, 1928, shows current assets of $3,633,476 as compared with current liabilities of $284,273, a ratio of over 12 to 1. Cash alone amounted to $506,416.

AMERICANS TO BUILD RAILWAY

Directors of the Albitbi Southern Railway Co. at special meeting in Montreal, attended by Clifford Taber McAllister, representing Boston and New York financial interests who were back of the undertaking, voted to go ahead with construction of the company's railway line, and voted increase in authorized capital stock to $10,000,000.

S. Logan, formerly vice-president of Grand Trunk Railway Co. of Canada, Henry Holgate, C. B. A. leading Canadian consulting engineer, and Hon. Nathaniel Curry, member of the Canadian Senate, chairman of the Canadian Car & Foundries Co. and director of many other companies, were made directors.

Mr. Logan becomes vice-president and Mr. Holgate chief engineer. Company's line, which will connect Ames with Montreal and Ottawa, with Hamilton and Muskoka, would make in direct line for the tapping of the rich mineral area of northern Quebec, and would bring to Ottawa and Montreal that business which now goes indirectly to Toronto.

Shareholders later formally approved action of directors.

Insurance Petition Is Signed By Hundreds

Hundreds of signatures to the petition favoring the Frank A. Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill for a State fund to supply compulsory automobile insurance at cost to Massachusetts motorists, are pouring into the office of this newspaper. Never has such interest in a bill before the Massachusetts Legislature been displayed by the motorists of this State.

Signatures are coming in from all parts of the State, but particularly from the cities and towns in districts 1, 2 and 3 where the hardships have been felt hardest by present compulsory insurance rates.

Many of the signatures to petitions are accompanied by interesting letters from readers, showing the keen interest they are showing in the Goodwin-Boston American bill whereby a saving of $7,500,000 annually will be effected for the motorists of Massachusetts by doing away with the present mixing system and graduated scale based on the power of cars and substituting a flat rate.

AT COST RATES

Under the Goodwin-Boston American bill a State fund of $17,357,801 would be established by charging $16 for every passenger car at the time of registration, $25 for every truck and $50 for every bus, rental car or taxi. Instead of this amount being paid this year, however, Massachusetts motorists will pay $70,000, 000 to private insurance companies, of which $3,000,000 will represent commissions to insurance agents.

Is it to be wondered at that the insurance companies are actively fighting the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill in the hope of defeating it?

Among those who have written to the Boston Evening American endorsing the bill are the following:

FLAT RATE NEEDED

WALLACE E. BACHELLER of 157 Milk st. Boston, who is in the flour, hay, grain and mill feed business: "I am heartily in favor of the bill of Frank A. Goodwin and the Boston Evening American. If the state has a compulsory insurance law, the state itself should have an insurance commission with a state fund, to which those who are held responsible for accidents of any sort. This insurance fee should be collected at the time a registration is granted by the official granting the same. It is unjustice to force on the public the zoning feature now in effect and it should be changed without delay. What is needed is a flat rate, regardless of where car owners live, as is carried out in the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill.

I fail to see any justice in having a compulsory insurance law where no one is benefitted except the insurance companies who pay high salaries to their officers and also high commissions to their representatives. Let the state do justice to those who cannot afford to be burdened with these unfair practices and have the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill passed as quickly as possible."

THANKS AMERICAN

J. C. STEVENS, of 43 Union ave., Jamaica Plain: "Thanks for your efforts in behalf of the car owners of this State. I hope Frank A. Goodwin will be placed in charge of the whole thing if passed, as I am delaying taking my car out in the hope the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill will be passed and take effect soon.

JOHN A. DOLAN, of 48 Mystic st., Charlestown: I have been reading of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American plan in your paper. I want to say that I am heartily in favor of it, and I think it is the only solution of the problem. I cannot understand why a man living in Boston has to pay $16 more for compulsory automobile insurance than a man living in Medford, when both are probably covering the same ground. I want to thank the Boston Evening American for its efforts in behalf of the car owners.

PAUL ROSS of Brighton—Enclosed please find signatures to your petition very much interested in what you are doing to reduce the price of compulsory automobile insurance. Hope it goes through a State fund. I know many persons who are very much opposed to the present automobile compulsory insurance law. There should be no difficulty in getting thousands of signatures to the petition in favor of the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill.

There are many cars put up now that can't be registered this year until very late on account of the present law, and in many cases cars will not be used at all this year because of the high insurance rates. Something should be done to help automobile owners this year as well as next. Paying taxes on something you are prohibited from using because of exorbitant insurance rates on same is like paying for a dead horse.

Citizens who believe the present automobile insurance law to be unfair are invited to write their opinion of the proposed State Fund to supply insurance at cost as provided for in the Goodwin-Boston Evening American bill as well as their experience under the present law. Don't forget to sign the petition printed on this page and mail to the Boston Evening American. Obey that impulse and DO IT NOW.

Trans-Lux Installs New 'Movie' Ticker

Development of the Trans-Lux "movie news ticker," to which, after several months of careful testing, is being installed in brokers' offices, clubs and hotels, marks an important step in the expansion program of this new enterprise.

Installation of the new ticker is being made on a rental basis, as several hundreds are expected to be in use by the end of the current year.

On December 31, last, the company had 1215 "movie tickers" in service, as compared with 883 on January 1, 1928.

Nickel Plate Has Lowered Income

Nickel Plate's net income for 1928 was $6,487,000, after all dividend requirements on the 360,379 shares of 6 per cent preferred, to $12.91 a share on the 327,092 common shares, against $15.41 a share on the 313,456 common shares after dividend requirements on 326,872 shares of preferred in 1927.

Fourth quarter's net income after charges totaled $2,382,565, equal to $5.16 a share on 337,062 shares of common, against $2,121,601, or $5.03 a share on 303,456 common shares in the December quarter of previous year.

Atlantic National Is Transfer Agent

Atlantic National Bank has been appointed transfer agent in Boston by the Atlantic Coastal Stock of the Compo Shoe Machinery Corp., a Delaware corporation.

Is your auto insurance costing you too much? Ought the law to compel you to furnish profits to private companies? Do the present zone rates seem fair to you?

Would you like the overhead cut from compulsory insurance?

SAYS WIFE WAS DEBAUCHED BY DRUGS

The charge that his wife, Mrs. Rae Velmore Bliss, attractive Newton woman, indulged in daily drug debauches, was made by Emery C. Bliss, Temple pl, Boston, chiropodist, seeking a divorce in Middlesex probate court at Cambridge today.

Bliss, who also charged cruel and abusive treatment, declared his wife threatened to cut his throat while he slept, and that he barricaded his bedroom door in fear of his life.

Under direct examination by his counsel, Atty. Walter F. Brownell, Bliss testified to being married June 28, 1920, at Taunton. He said that about January of 1927 an Avondale physician began to visit the Bliss home and minister to Mrs. Bliss.

The witness testified he watched the doctor mix up a solution which he placed in a hypodermic syringe and then injected into the arm of Mrs. Bliss.

"For 10 or 15 minutes thereafter my wife seemed perfectly all right," the witness continued. "Gradually she went off into a coma and would go to sleep for three or four hours.

"For an hour to an hour and a half after she woke up she would not know where she was. It would take that long for her to come out of it."

In 1927 Mrs. Bliss was taken to the Newton Hospital for an operation, her husband testified, and after her return there was a period when no drugs were used. Then the drug taking started again, he said, and from January 1, 1928, to June, when he left her, became a daily habit.

The witness said he had frequent disputes with his wife over her use of drugs and opiates. He said she told him on several occasions she would "get" him, and many times threatened to cut his throat while he was asleep.

"She told me she would put me to sleep so I would never wake up," he testified.

Under cross-examination Bliss denied he knew his wife was in poor health when he married her. He admitted he might have written her to the effect that he would marry her despite any illness.

Under questioning by Atty. George H. Lucey for Mrs. Bliss her husband admitted she complained of suffering from severe headaches.

Marines Reach Shanghai

Shanghai, Jan. 23 (AP)—The United States transport Henderson arrived from Tientsin today with 900 American marines. This marked the withdrawal of the last of the marines from North China.

HUB FISHERMEN SAVE TRAWLER OFF LIGHT

A dramatic story of the efforts made by his crew to assist the fishing trawler Mariner as, with her engines disabled, she was being buffeted about in a 40-mile gale 175 miles off Highland Light on Sunday, was related today by Captain Simon Theriault when his vessel, the fish dragger Edith Rose, docked at the Fish Pier in South Boston.

The Mariner is now being towed to Boston by the fishing trawler Plover.

Shortly before three o'clock Sunday afternoon, Captain Theriault said, he came upon the Mariner wallowing in heavy seas, her engines damaged so badly that temporary repairs could not be made.

Huge waves made it difficult to cast the trawler a tow line and it was necessary to make four attempts before this was accomplished. Then for three hours the Edith Rose struggled toward Boston. Her tow line snapped at the end of that time, darkness had set in, she had no other line, and no help was in sight.

At last after standing by the disabled vessel until dawn the trawler Plover was sighted and came to the rescue.

The Mariner is commanded by Capt. Peter Linnehan and has a crew of 20 men.

STUDENTS ARE 'BOOTLEG PREY'

"Young students who are forming their characters are prey to bootleggers," Judge Stone asserted in the East Cambridge Court today before fining Gustave Sauer, chef in the Pi Eta Club of Harvard, for illegal keeping and possession of liquor.

Sauer was fined a total of $100 by Judge Stone.

The club in Winthrop sq., Cambridge, was raided January 17 by the Cambridge liquor squad and 25 gallons of wine were seized.

Sauer vanished from the club and could not be found. Police, however, served warning on the club that if the chef did not appear in court, action would be started against the club itself.

The chef appeared today for trial.

Abutters Protest Artery Assessment

Betterment assessments on abutters of the new Southern Artery were attacked at a legislative hearing today by Mayor Thomas J. McGrath and other citizens of Quincy. The mayor held that the abutters and nearby residents, except in a few instances, receive no possible benefit from the improvement. He held that it is solely a main route for traffic between Boston and the Cape.

"We are willing to pay our proportionate share as part of the metropolitan district," he said, "but we do not believe the home owners should pay for this highway."

Blame Bootlegs for Constantinople Fire

Constantinople, Jan. 23 (AP)—Turkish authorities believe an explosion of a bootlegging distillery was responsible for a disastrous fire which swept one of the most crowded districts of Constantinople, causing heavy loss.

The total number of shops and houses dwellings destroyed was estimated at 600 with the monetary loss at $1,000,000, of which only $53,000 was covered by insurance.

Fifteen Greeks in whose house the fire started, were arrested as well as a number of men charged with trying to steal property householders threw from their burning

Friends of Trotzky Put Under Arrest

Moscow, Jan. 23 (AP)—The official news agency, Tass, reported today that 26 supporters of Leon Trotzky, in exile for his opposition, have been arrested by the secret police charged with extensive anti-soviet activities.

The Crime in the Crypt

By CAROLYN WELLS

Six-Day Novel by a Famous Author

Mottram Oakley, a young American touring England, discovers a fellow American lying murdered in a sarcophagus in a cathedral crypt. He is very anxious to solve the crime and picks up some whitish-yellow grains near the coffin. He then calls on John Clevedon, whom he had met on the boat and who he knew is interested in detective stories. Clevedon however has seriously injured his hand and his doctor forbids him to talk about the murder case.

The mystery remains unsolved and Oakley becomes Clevedon's private secretary and accompanies him to Amer... They have been settled only a short time in Clevedon's palatial home when his mother's personal maid is found shot to death in a hammock in the rose arbor. This crime, too, never is solved.

SAYS WIFE WAS DEBAUCHED BY DRUGS

The charge that his wife, Mrs Rae Velmarie Bliss, attractive Newton woman, indulged in dope and debauches was made by Ernest C. Bliss, Tenth pl. Boston, in opposition to a divorce libel seeking a decree in Middlesex probate court at Cambridge today.

Bliss, who has charged cruel and abusive treatment, declared his wife threatened to cut his throat while he slept and that he barricaded his bedroom door in fear of his life.

Under direct examination by his counsel, Atty. Walter E. Brownell, Bliss testified to having married June 28, 1926 at Taunton. He said that about January of 1927 an Auburndale physician left with him the Bliss home and minister to Mrs. Bliss.

The witness testified he watched the doctor mix up a solution which he placed in a hypodermic syringe and then injected into the arm of Mrs Bliss.

"For 15 or 18 minutes there after my wife seemed perfectly all right," the witness continued "Gradually she went off into a coma and would go to sleep for three or four hours.

"For an hour to an hour and a half after she woke up she would not know where she was. I would take food for her to come out of it.

In 1927 Mrs. Bliss was taken to the Newton Hospital for an operation her husband testified, and after her return there was a period when no drugs were used. Then the drug taking started again, he said, and from January 1, 1928, to June, when he left, became a daily habit.

The witness said he had frequent disputes with his wife over her use of drugs and opiates. He said she told him on several occasions she would [illegible] him and many times [illegible] without his knowledge when he was asleep.

CHARGE WOMAN AID DOMINATED GOV. JOHNSTON

Oklahoma City, Jan. 23 (AP)—Investigations involving the name of Mrs. O. O. Hammonds, confidential secretary of Henry S Johnston, suspended Governor; the State Highway Department; other branches of State government, and elusive rumors regarding $10,000 said to have played a part in the abrupt dispersal last winter of attempted impeachment activities today were rivals for the inquisitorial spotlight of the Twelfth Oklahoma Legislature.

Consideration of additional impeachment charges against Governor Johnston by the House of Representatives, which was a possibility, as the voting of a sixth charge, cleared the way for discussion of another of the four remaining charges now before the House by its judiciary committee and awaiting action.

The name of Mrs. Hammonds appeared frequently while before both the House and the Senate investigating committees relating stories purporting to deal with her activities.

W. B. Graham, former auditor for the State Highway Department first mentioned Mrs. Hammonds to the investigative committee, which is seeking foundation for the rumors and reports of corruption in connection with last winter's impeachment attempt.

He related that at one time a shock her fist in the Governor's face and commanded him to "be quiet." Graham testified the incident occurred during a conference in the office of J. B. Armstrong, political adviser of the Governor, and uncle of Mrs. Hammonds.

L. K. Ford, mechanical engineer, said he saw an envelope containing money passed to Mrs. Hammonds by a woman who was charged with complicity in the raid of her purported influence with the pardon board.

FLU INCREASES IN EUROPE; HITS FIJI ISLAND

London, Jan. 23 (AP)—Influenza, which has been sweeping Europe as well as other parts of the world, appeared today to be on the increase.

The epidemic was acute in London where many offices were crippled by the absence of part of their staffs Medical workers were issuing leaflets on how to avoid and cure influenza.

Indoor workers were mainly affected. The biggest London omnibus company reported that very few men were absent because of illness, although exposed to rigorous and variable weather the drivers maintained their average health.

Hungary, Finland and Germany were among the chief European sufferers. Warsaw alone reported 10,000 cases with some deaths, but the epidemic was milder in Poland than in some other countries.

Fiji, Jan. 23 (AP)—Broncho pneumonic influenza has affected all of the 23,000 inhabitants of the Island of Rotuma, except two Europeans and 50 Fijians. There have been 31 deaths, said information received here today. The epidemic is decreasing.

Rotuma is 500 miles north of the main Fiji group, but under Fiji administration. The first case of influenza appeared December 4 after the arrival of the inter-Island steamer Makatea.

Notwithstanding that he himself was ill with disease, Dr. W. D. Carew, the resident commissioner, gave virtually all of the medical attention to the sufferers.

MRS. H. P. WHITTINGTON FINDS NEW WAY TO AID CHARITY—BETTY ALDEN

BOSTON DOES ITS PHILANTHROPIES variously—corralling the dollars to accompaniment of dulcet tones or wailing strings in gilded ballrooms; via the silver tongues of visiting celebrities on lecture platforms who picture the wonders and amazements of far places; philanthropies are always to be accomplished by the obsuitous fete or bazaar. But it remains for the very smart and important set having the Children's Hospital financial welfare at heart to do none of the foregoing things when a bank balance is to be replenished and additions to the hospital made.

WITH ABSOLUTELY NO fanfare of the publicity trumpets they are staging what is the most quietly satisfactory and successfully financial "campaign" that ever went forward to a golden goal. I believe Mrs. H. Parker Whittington's is the genius that has wholly confined a new method of corralling dollars while absolutely disregarding concerts, bazaars, balls or fetes, what waiters consider should be the royal road for philanthropy to tread. She merely brings a congenial set together and has duly appointed luncheon tables, tells them of the hospital's needs and garners a rich harvest. Fine matrons plethorically pursed and Midas minded.

EVERY TUESDAY THESE luncheons proceed at the Hotel Statler, with usually Mrs. Whittington, Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster and Mrs. Richard S. Russell in attendance when they are in town and in the absence of other Children's Hospital adherents stepping into a quasi hostess place. Mrs. George L. Batchelder, Miss Betty Bartlett, Mrs. J. Lewis Bremer, Mrs. Judd Dewey, Mrs. Conover Fitch, Mrs. William E. Ladd, Miss Dorothy Laurence, Mrs. Arthur S. Mann, Mrs. Paul M. Hubbard, Mrs. Philip Stockton, Mrs. Henry Preston White, Mrs. S. Hunting ton Wolcott and Mrs. Kingsbury Brown are luncheon guests and contributors to the hospital's coffers.

AND FROM A LONG AND most important list may be gleaned other generous ones such as Mrs. Harold F. McNeil, Mrs. William H Potter, Mrs. Louis E. Voss, Mrs. Frederick S. Mead, Mrs. George Peabody Gardiner, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Leland, Mrs. Augustus P. Loring, Jr., Mrs. Francis Bacon Lothrop, Mrs. J. Franklin Mechlin, Mrs. Robert W. Means, Mrs. John Perrin, Mrs. Stephen W. Sleeper, Mrs. James W. Spring, Mrs. Frank Stewart, Mrs. Richard P. Strong and Mrs. Matthew J. Whittal.

THE BLIGHT THAT DESCENDS ON THE DEBUTANTE WORLD when Harvard is in the throes of "midyears" is in no wise reflected on two affairs that illumine the calendar for next Friday evening. Dancing partners of the undergraduate specification do not figure in the smart dance that goes on at the Algonquin Club. And at the Russian Cabaret at 46 Beacon st. no stag line is necessary—the dancing will be mainly expressions of the Muscovite art done by youthful Russians and certain Boston girls. The young gentlemen from over the River Charles are quite out of the picture, temporarily.

THE SMARTEST DANCING SET, DEVOTEES BEFORE THE brassy shrine of syncopation, has added two subscription parties to the winter's meed of such frivolities and so gives the Senior Supper Dance coterie a full measure. Friday comes the second and last party, with such very smart young people as Mrs. Henry Crocker Barr, Mrs Edward L. Bigelow, Mrs. Frederick Wadsworth Bush, Mrs. William Davis Sohier, Jr., and Miss Margery Richardson figuring importantly in its progress. The Algonquin Club's ballroom is very nicely adapted to these pleasant subscription parties so well arranged by Messrs. William A. Barron, Jr.; Chandler Bigelow, Edward S. Brewer and Henry McB. Parker.

AT A NEWBURY ST. STUDIO PRINCESS TOUMANOFF INSTILS into a band of coryphees Russian fire and verve that Friday evening's audience at the Russian cabaret may be thrilled in beholding dance numbers on a brilliant program. To certain of the dancers Muscovite flair and versatility are inheritance—they being young feminines of the important Russian colony of Boston. Others of the performers are Boston born and bred, some of the but crop of the present season enrolled for the dance's sake. Miss Elinor Hopkinson, Miss Madeleine Jonckheere, Miss Gretal Zinsser are the debutantes.

OTHER YEAR GIRLS ARE MISS RUTH WELLINGTON, MISS MARGERY FAY, Miss Ellen Talnter and Miss Katherine Gilchrist. And the young Russian girls perfectly versed in their land's spirited dance steps are the Misses Olga Zehr, Nina Parlenoff, Tatiana Makaroff and Marina Komarowa. Patronage is from that superlatively patronized set that for most seasons has beamed benignly on the Russian Club and its well-born members of an aristocracy that is no more. Mrs Randolph Morgan Appleton, Mrs. Roger S. Warner, Mrs. Charles Pelham Curtis, Jr., Mrs. Manning Emery, Mrs. J. Lowell Lillie, Mrs. Richard D. Wadsworth and Miss Rose Dexter lend their patronage and interest. Miss Mary Porter, down in her River st. home, may be approached for tickets.

A TINY FIGURE IN HER SNUG ANGORA SWEATER AND bright tartans, little Miss Polly Blodgett skims over the shining ice field of the Arena practising her figure skating for the ice carnival on Jan. 30. A sole skater is the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jared Blodgett—doing a specific number in the benefit for Elizabeth Peabody House, staged by Boston Skating Club members. Little Miss Polly is one of the youngest to become proficient in eights and twirls and spirals, the pastime the Skating Club members never tire of, and turn out for religiously on their Tuesdays and Thursdays at the Arena.

A BLONDE SPRITE ON DARTING SKATES, WEARING LAVender tulle and satin, is Miss Gweneth Butler, elder daughter of the C. Cecil Butlers. Miss Butler skates excellently, and so merits a place in the complicated Ice Ballet number that has a dozen or two girls dancing in it and is led by that youthful whirlwind on skates, Miss Maribel Vinson. Tarletan skirts and neck ruffs in brilliant purples and crowns enliven the scene when the Ice Carnival progresses, and all the skaters are embryo champions.

COLD SPELL ON THE WAY EAST AFTER SNOW

Leaving only slightly more than a trace of snow in its path, the threatening western storm area passed over New England through the night and it centered today in western Quebec.

Following rapidly on its heels an extensive cold wave is developing in a wide swath from Montana to Illinois, tumbling temperatures 25 to 35 degrees as it travels southeastward to the Atlantic coast.

The Boston Bureau does not anticipate the brunt of the cold snap will be felt hereabouts, although a drop in temperature tonight and tomorrow is expected to reflect the proximity of the frigid wave as it passes south of New England.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair and colder tonight Thursday increasing cloudiness and colder, dumpishing westerly winds.

Rich Americans Buy German Boats

Bremen, Germany, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sixty-nine motor and sailing yachts, luxury craft ordered by wealthy Americans along the Atlantic seaboard, are one the books of the United States lines for shipment to the United State.

BIG FUTURE FOR U. S. SHIPPING, SAYS O'CONNOR

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, believes that after a long period of uncertainty, American merchant shipping "at last faces a future that has bright promise."

"It has become evident to all of us that at last we are going to have a real merchant marine," he said in an address prepared for delivery today at the opening session of the seventh national conference on the merchant marine, called by the Shipping Board.

"We have all noted the steady increase in our export trade, the strong interest of our people in matters relating to the sea, the expansion of wise and sympathetic law designed to aid the merchant marine the increasing availability of American capital for maritime investments, and the rapid transfer of government tonnage to private ownership," he said. "To those of us who try to take a large view of things, these factors all seem to be working toward a new day for American shipping."

Means of reducing the differential between shipbuilding costs in this country and in Europe, methods of increasing patronage of American ships, disposition of the government's laid-up fleet, and safety of life at sea were down on the conference agenda for special consideration.

GUARD HOOVER IN FLORIDA RETREAT

Miami Beach, Fla., Jan. 23 (INS) Herbert Hoover went into seclusion today.

On Belle Isle, in the middle of Biscayne Bay, the President-elect turned his back on all engagements, denied himself to visitors and settled down to a month's relaxation. He plans to do a lot of fishing. But not even this activity could entice him today away from the luxurious lodge that is to be his home for the next four weeks.

Mr. Hoover's present quarters retreat is ideally situated for his purpose. He wants quiet and solitude. There is but one entrance to it, and that is guarded by secret service operatives and Florida State police.

Callers must identify themselves and disclose their business, if any, before being admitted to the grounds. All around him are the blue waters of the bay.

The island is reached only by a causeway over which there is comparatively little traffic.

Mr. Hoover will here mull over the tons of data which he brought south with him after two weeks of conferences with the politicians of Washington. Here the cabinet chances of a score of aspirants are to be weighed in the balance and the policies of the new administration upon a score of problems probably to be determined.

Mr. Hoover was greatly pleased by his welcome in Florida, which outdid even the elaborate reception which was given to President Coolidge on his fleeting visit of last year. It has been several years since the state, and particularly Miami Beach, has had an opportunity to entertain a chief executive, and it is making the most of it.

Upwards of 50 000 persons lined the trees and the causeway yesterday when Mr. Hoover arrived, following what amounted almost to a triumphal tour down the east coast. He was greeted by the mayors of the twin cities, given the keys of both, as well as an expensive fishing outfit which he hopes to utilize later.

TOTAL VOTE WAS 36,863,533

Washington, Jan. 23 (INS)—The total vote for the six candidates for the presidency in the November 6 election was 36 863 533, according to an official tabulation issued today by William Tyler Page, clerk of the House. The report is said to be the only accurate one made, as Pace awaited settlement of many vote disputes before completing his totals.

The vote was: Hoover, 21,388,300; Smith, 15,005,443; Foster, Workers Party, 47,767; Thomas, Socialist, 266,548; Reynolds, Socialist-Labor, 21,601; Varney, Prohibition, 20,101; Webb, Farm-Labor, 6279.

CHILDREN

for Colds and Flu

A peculiarity of influenza is that its toxins upset the digestive system and too much "dosing" still further disturbs the digestion just when the child needs all his reserve strength to fight off the flu.

Internal medication should be avoided, therefore, except on the advice of a physician. As Vicks VapoRub is applied externally, it can be used freely, even on the youngest child, with no fear of upsetting the most delicate stomach.

A Safe External Treatment

When flu is around, don't let children keep a cold overnight. At the very first sign, put the child to bed. Apply hot wet towels on the throat and chest until the skin is thoroughly reddened. Then rub vigorously with Vicks. Spread on thickly and cover with warm flannel.

Leave the bed-covering loose around the neck so that Vicks medicated vapors, released by the body warmth, can be freely inhaled. They are breathed in direct to the inflamed air-passages, loosening the phlegm and clearing the head.

At the same time, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" tightness and soreness.

After a Flu-Attack

Don't let the children get up too soon; rest in bed helps nature to build up the vitality. Don't let them work or play too hard, and be careful to avoid sudden chills.

Above all, stop every cold at the start. At this time, more than ever, colds attacking the weakened system may lead to bronchitis, abscess of the ear, sinus-trouble, or pneumonia.

Equally good for adults. Of course, Vicks 2-way action is just as effective for adults' cold-troubles as it is for children's.

Rickard's Life One of Constant Work

By JACK DEMPSEY

No man ever worked harder and played less—except during the last year of his life—than Tex Rickard.

After that Chicago fight in 1927 I noticed that Tex had grown a little thin and nervous and mighty tired under the strain of promoting the show, and when I was saying goodbye to him before leaving for the coast, I asked:

"Why don't you take a vacation—play around a little bit and have some fun?"

Tex looked at me as if he was puzzled.

"Play?" he repeated.

"Sure—that's it," I said. "You know—go hunting or fishing or take a long ocean tour or go in for golf with a whoop like other fellows, get a whoop out of life—and fun—now that you've got all the money you need."

"Ain't ever played in my life—kind of think I wouldn't know how," he answered. "Since I was a kid I never had time for it—or the money.

"Had to go out hustling for a living when I was a little shaver and there wasn't any time for fooling around."

"Well, now you've got time—and the money," I reminded him. "Get some fun out of life."

"Oh, I've had fun—lots of it—" he put in. "But not like other people. My fun's been in gambling.

"First it was as boss of the game in a gambling house. Kind of risky, if you're running a square game and you haven't a very big bank roll and somebody gets in a lucky streak.

"THAT was my fun, day after day, night after night, watching how this here luck business was working; whether it was coming my way or going the other. Sure, it was kind of tough on the nerves, but it was fun.

"And after that, when I got into this fight game and found it was a bigger gamble—well, that was lots more fun for me than soaking a golf ball or jerking a fish out of water or shooting some little animal. Yes, sir, plenty more fun.

"I'd make a match and guarantee the fighters so much money. Right away the writing boys would say I had gone crazy. The people would think so, too.

"Then I'd get my fun seeing the money coming in with ticket orders coming, day after day, more and more cash in the till until pretty soon I'd have enough to make sure I'd break even and then I'd get more fun with all the new orders that meant profit for me.

"Now that's funny—for me. That's my way of playing. Never could find a better one, and if I did, I guess I wouldn't like it much. I've gambled all my life—and gambling is play as well as work for me.

"And this here thing of putting on a big fight and gambling on the result of the gate—that's the greatest fun in life."

BUT within a few months his viewpoint was changed—in an accidental way. He went to Miami to sign up Tunney for the Heeney fight last summer.

He got to looking around, saw people with fine homes, fine yachts, having a lot of fun playing golf, fishing, boating and loafing around in the sunshine.

And then this man who never had played suddenly found himself wanting to play and get some real fun out of life.

Tex, who never had owned a real home in his whole life, bought a magnificent one in Miami and suddenly took a great interest in planting things and beautifying his place.

He went in strong for golf. He bought himself a yacht and cruised the waters of the Atlantic.

The life of a "country gentleman" suddenly became his real desire. Sure, he drifted back to New York in 1928, but the town, with the roar and the whirr and the rush, and the tumult that he once loved, just didn't seem quite the same to him any more.

LAST fall, when I was with him in New York, he swept his hand out at the city and said:

"I'm thinking you were right on telling me to get a little fun like other people get it. I just can't get a 'kick' out of this town any more.

"It's too noisy and people don't play enough. I'll certainly be glad when winter gets here and I can go south to Miami. I'm wondering how those flowers are doing I planted down there—and those four palm trees in the yard."

And then, as an afterthought, he added:

"Getting kind of tired of this fight thing, Jack, and I'm all hopped up about playing around now and getting the REAL FUN out of life."

The tragic death of Tex is made more so when I recall that his life came to its end just as he had made his plans to play around and enjoy it

Christner Almost Stopped Dempsey

By SID MERCER.

New York, Jan. 23—Up to the time he was 30 years old Meyer Wilson Christner did not know the feel of a boxing glove. He is 34 now and has been fighting professionally only a little more than a year.

The ex-rubber worker of Akron, O., bridged the gap from his 14th professional fight to headline billing at Madison Sq. Garden by knocking out Knute Hansen in Cleveland last month. That led to his match with Jack Sharkey at the Garden next Friday night.

They are betting 3 to 1 that Christner will not win from Sharkey and even money that he will not go the limit. "They" also say he is no boxer, is wide open for the left hook that Sharkey specializes in and hadn't the experience to cope with the crafty veteran.

But Kayo Christner, with quiet confidence, says Sharkey can be KO. 'ed.

"He'll fall just as quickly as the others when I tap him," Kayo asserts. "You can't train a jaw to outpoint a pile driver."

In 44 bouts, including 15 as a professional, he flattened 37 opponents.

Early in the fall of 1927 Christner was only a raw beginner and had not even thought of turning professional. He wanted to see the Dempsey-Tunnsy fight in Chicago, so he journeyed to Lincoln Field and offered his services to Dempsey as a sparring partner. He lasted only a few days, as Dempsey considered him too crude.

Leo Flynn, who was in charge of the Lincoln Fields camp, re-membered Christner well.

"Yes, indeed, I do," chirps Flynn. "He socked our Jacko on the jaw one day and Dempsey had to grab to keep his feet."

Christner received an education at St. Mary's Industrial School, Baltimore—the same institution that gave Babe Ruth to baseball.

As a small boy at St. Mary's he remembers Al Jolson as the school's best singer. Later he "slept two beds away" from Babe Ruth in a dormitory. He used to catch Ruth when the Babe pitched for the school team.

Quinn Not to Number Sox Players

OPPOSED TO YANKS PLAN

90 Per Cent of Fans Know the Players, So They Need No Tagging, Says Quinn

Bob Quinn, president of the Red Sox, failed to show any interest in the proposed plan of the New York Yankees to number their players, when questioned on the subject today.

It was thought in some circles that Quinn would follow the lead of the Yankees and adopt a system of numerals for the Red Sox. Quinn, however, emphatically denied that he was planning such a course.

"Why should we copy off some one else? To be a copy-cat will not get you anywhere. Furthermore it is a boy's trick. Just because the Yankees are the leading team and we are trailing doesn't mean that we have to follow their ideas.

"We lead and let those who can follow. The game is open and you don't need to tag the players. Besides, 90 per cent of our fans know the baseball players by sight, class, and their ways of performing.

"Of course the Yankees management might figure it out that the spring training fans down at St. Petersburg don't know the players and that might be their reason for numbering the individuals."

Yankee Players to Be Numbered This Year

New York, Jan. 23 (AP)—By their numbers shall the New York Yankees be known this summer.

Setting a major league precedent, the Yankees have decided to have 12-inch numerals sewed on the backs of their players' shirts so that each may be readily identified by fans in the stands.

Under a tentative arrangement the regulars will be numbered by their position in batting order. Thus a fan who does not know his Yankees can search the field until he finds a player with a huge No. 3 on his back.

That will be, of course, the well-known home-run manufacturer, Babe Ruth. No. 1 will be Earle Combs; No. 4, Lou Gehrig; No. 5, Bob Meusel, and so on. The key to the numbers will be found in the score cards.

Yankee officials believe the plan will meet with favor among spectators who don't get many chances to see the various players. Especially will it be valuable, they believe, before game time when some fifty players will be on the field. The numbers will readily identify all of them to the fans.

The scheme, common enough in other lines of sport, has also been tried in baseball, but not by a major league club.

Chicago May Have Two Hockey Clubs

Chicago, Jan. 23 (INS)—Prospects of Chicago having two hockey teams operating in professional leagues appeared excellent today following reports from Ottawa, Canada, that Chicago interests were seeking to purchase the Senators.

Reports that Paddy Harmon was negotiating for the transfer of the Ottawa team to Chicago were confirmed by local promoter, who added, however, that no agreement had been reached as yet.

Forefather to Block

TILTS WITH N. E. TITLE HOLDER IN GARDEN

WON'T HAVE EASY TIME IN MELLO WAR

Joe Dundee has the welterweight crown in his possession now. He defeated some good fighters in his years in the ring. But he must be in great shape to get the award over Lowell Al. Mello, who has improved rapidly in the past year. Many ring critics think he should be champ. The Garden war will tell a lot.

ROCKNE IN HUB TOMORROW

Knute Rockne, famous football coach at Notre Dame, will be in Boston today, making what is believed to be his first visit to this city. He is scheduled to appear at the Boston City Club tomorrow evening, where he will deliver an address entitled "Hitting the Line."

Coach Rockne's address, which will be limited to members of the City Club and will be the only one which he will deliver on this trip to Boston.

Leo Leary, former Harvard coach under Percy Haughton, will introduce Coach Rockne.

Shore Positively Not to Be Sold to N. Y.

In regard to the unauthorized report that Eddie Shore had been sold to the Rangers the Bruins owner said that the New York club had not enough money to purchase the Bruins' star defense player.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

After the strenuous schedule they have been playing since the first of the year, the Bruins did nobly to hold Les Canadiens to a tie last night at the Boston Garden.

With few exceptions the Bruins showed the effects of the five games per week schedule they have been going through for three weeks.

Also, the Bruins detrained at the North Station before the game after a two-night and one full day trip from Chicago. It is unreasonable to expect any team to display its finest game after such a ride.

Eddie Shore was walking around the Garden without any sign of lameness and he will be on the defence for the Bruins when they open the New York Rangers in Madison Sq. Garden next Sunday night. The Bruins will rest up until the Ranger game, keeping in shape by light daily practice sessions.

Dit Clapper left immediately after the game for Toronto, as his fiancee, Miss Andrews, was operated on again, and according to a telephone message, there is little hope of her recovery. Clapper came back to Boston and went home from Detroit last Thursday night and did not report back until Sunday night.

Few realize the suffering Dit Clapper has been subjected to for the past month. He has made no less than five trips to Toronto and has been in communication with Miss Andrews' surgeon almost every day.

For a week Clapper has looked drawn and tired, but he has gone about his work bravely, in spite of his troubles.

As a result of last night's contests, Rangers and Detroit each picked up a point on the Bruins, Toronto and the Canucks slipped across a fine 3 to 0 victory over the Maroons. The one point won last night puts the Frenchmen just one game behind the Americans.

FORMER SOX OWNER DEAD

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23 (AP)—Henry J. Killilea, owner of the Milwaukee baseball club, and one of the founders of the American league, died in a hospital at 10:25 a. m. today.

Killilea had been in a hospital since January 7, when he suffered a heart attack. A week ago he had a stroke of paralysis and yesterday the doctors gave up hope for his recovery.

Killilea was born in 1867 and became owner of the Milwaukee baseball club January 3, 1928, purchasing it from Mrs. Isabel Ruby Borchert, widow of the late Otto Borchert. In 1903 he was owner of the Boston Red Sox.

The first move toward forming the American League was taken at Killilea's home here at his suggestion. He, his brother, Matt, Connie Mack, Charley Comiskey and Ban Johnson organized the league, of which Milwaukee at one time was a member.

COAST BOY BIDS FOR TITLE

Has Scored Recent Ring Victories Over Thompson and Sammy Baker

By JACK CONWAY

MATCHMAKER EDDIE Mack of the Boston Garden is making an effort to sign Jackie Fields, Coast welterweight, to meet the winner of the 10-round bout between Al Mello and Joe Dundee which will be staged here on Friday night.

Fields is the latest of the welterweight sensations. He handed Young Jack Thompson a licking following the latter's two-round knock out over Dundee in Chicago. He went on to Kayo Sammy Baker.

Fields is on his way East and wants a bout at Dundee. The Coast youth pulled a similar proposition on Mello, would start a campaign around the Hub if Dundee was defeated. Such a feature bout with Dundee in New York, but the New York Garden viewed the champion from this match so that he could mingle with Mello here. At the same time the Boston Garden released Max Schmeling from all contracts until February 15 so that he could take on Johnny Risko at the New York Garden on February 1. The German heavyweight will come here on February 15 to tackle Con O'Kelly.

Jack Conway

With the New York and Boston Gardens virtually under the same management they are able to juggle contests to their mutual advantage and at the same time give the boxers a break.

DUNDEE was to finish his training at Jim Toland's gym today. The champion, with knockout over Mickey Walker, Tommy Dixon, Hilario Martinez and Chic Hull to his credit, is of the opinion he will stop Mello.

Dundee is a sweet right-hand socker and is sure to let a barrage of blows fly once he whirls into action tomorrow night.

MELLO has received an offer for three bouts in California. Bobby Goldman will not make any decision in regard to the matter until after the Dundee match.

The preliminary card for Friday night's show looms up as one of the finest of the season. Especially are the fans manifesting interest in the featherweight battle between Andy Martin of Boston and Dominick Petrone of New York. These boys are rated as outstanding 126 pounders and their meeting is sure to prove one of the features of the show.

Jackie Brady, the Syracuse lightweight, who held Honeyboy Finnegan to a draw a few months ago while Jim Bow Leers when he licked on Jack Kane, the western lightweight who has made such a big hit here.

The third eight rounder will be Jack Zerenbo of Lynn and Eddie Curley of Boston Needham.

In two six round bouts Freddie Miller, undefeated featherweight of Sweden will meet Mickey McGowan while Jimmy Leonard of Lowell will meet Billy O'Leary of South Boston.

University Six Faces Atlantics on Garden Ice

CLUBMEN IN FOR HARD SESSION

Moncton Team Has Great Front Line; Club Sextet at Full Strength

LINEUPS AT GARDEN

| UNIVERSITY | | MONCTON |
|---|---|---|
| Hodder, lw | rw, Earl Kervin | |
| Chase, c | c, Weatherston | |
| Kervin, rw | lw, Cole | |
| Pratt, ld | rd, Wilson | |
| Fitzgerald, rd | ld, Ed Kervin | |
| Leonard, g | g, McKenzie | |

Atlantics of Moncton contenders for the championship of the Maritime Provinces are renewing rivalries at the Boston Garden tonight and tomorrow night in a two-game hockey series with the University Club

Last spring the Atlantics came to Boston and surprised fans here with a 4 to 3 win over the University Club in one of the most thrilling nights of the season

It took a reinforced club team to set the visitors back the following night, aided and abetted by Johnny Chase and Myles Lane, then fresh out of college

ATLANTICS WERE FINE

The fans who witnessed those two games will not soon forget the type of hockey which the invaders displayed

The defense of Wilson and Ed Kervin was about as strong as any the club team had encountered all season, and the way these two boys revelled in that stiff bodychecking was a feature of the two tilts

McKenzie, the visiting goalie, was another surprise to the amateur followers, who thought that in Joe Merrill and Ted Leonard they had seen about the best in college and club ranks

The forward line as made up of Weatherston at center, Earl Kervin and Cole on the wings and it their teamwork and passing game is as good as it was last season, the club team will have its hands full from start to finish

WEATHERSTON GOOD

A year ago Patty Gould was playing center for this team, but Weatherston is reported to be faster and a better stick handler than the robust one, good enough to beat out Lane, who was reserve center for Gould a year ago.

Atlantics come well supplied with sports and in Peoples, Lane, Doncaster and James have ample forces to match the University Club extras

It was Wilson's mad dash in the closing period of last year's first game that stole the victory from the club team and he is reported to be as fast as ever this year

University Club will have its full strength. Johnny Chase will be at center, with Chet Hodder and Doug Perrett on the wings. Joe Fitzgerald and Eben Pratt will play defense with Ted Leonard in goal

Al Laesman Leaves For Miami Beach

New York, Jan. 23.—Alfred E. Laesman, star of the New York University's 1928 football team, was discharged from the Flatbush Hospital yesterday, reported as "much improved." Laesman was injured when he was struck on the head during the Clemson-New York University game on Nov. 23 at Pittsburgh. Contrary to advance reports Laesman will not stay in New York city and enter school there on Feb. 5, but will spend a few weeks with Alfred Hering, his prep schoolmate, at Miami Beach, Florida. He boarded yesterday at 3 o'clock on the S. S. Shawnee from Pier 45

Belmont Hill Ties Rivers School Six

Belmont Hill School and Rivers School of Brookline fought to a 1 to 1 deadlock after two five-minute overtime periods, in a fast hockey game played on the Belmont Hill School rink

Harvard Enters 45 Track Men in K. of C. Games

JIM REID IN TWO EVENTS

Gerald Swope in Quarter-Mile Race; Monty Wells in 45 Yard Hurdles

With the entrance of 45 members of the Harvard track team today, the K. of C. games at the Garden Saturday take on a new aspect.

Many brilliant performers are numbered in the list of Crimson entries among whom are Reid and Flaksman in the one and two-mile events, and Beaman and Cobb in the 1000-yard.

Cricket Dow, Hoare, Forbes, Hawes, Hooper, Howe, McGrath Mason, Seeber and Watkins are entered in the dash.

Aldrich and Beaman will carry the Crimson colors in the three-quarter mile run. Barr, Dalton Greene, Estes, Plathe, Halloweh, Lodge and Thurber are also entered in this event, thus giving Harvard a strong field.

17 OUT FOR RELAY.

Relay team entrants are Cobb, Crandall, Dow, Forbes, Gould, Hargrave, Halloweh, Kiratsu Mitchell, Munro, Seibel, Smith, Tupper, Woodbury, Record and Rowe.

Great quintet, composed of Brooks, Knieb, Porter, Smith and Watkins, will be seen in the 600-yard handicap, members who have signified their intention of taking part in the games are Atwood, Cole, Coffin, Corey, Martuhler, O'Connell, Lodge and Watkins.

REPUTATION AT STAKE.

The 70 yards run will be well taken care of by Ehlers, Kiratsu Mitchell and Tupper.

Brown, Burgess, Kuehn, and Quay are set to clear the bar in the high jump.

Reid and Flaksman, stars in the one and two mile running events are prepared to start in these events at the Garden.

Beaman and Cobb lead yard handicap, round out the list of Crimson entrants for the games.

Gerald Swope's entry in the William C. Prout Memorial 440-yard race fills out the strong field already entered in this feature. Swope is the Dartmouth track captain.

Swope must battle Bernie McGafferty of Holy Cross, Frankie Burns of the B. A. A., H. L. Platt of Dartmouth and Joe Tierney of the New York A. C., winner of the race last year.

Tierney is the best in the country in that race.

Bernie finished on indoor track last season for Seton Hall Prep, and he has fully lived up to all the nice things predicted for him when he ran for that school.

Frank Burns is the New England A. A. U. indoor champion and record holder and a former Holy Cross captain.

Swope is captain of the Dartmouth track team a sensational runner in the quarter. His great running against Ray Barbuti of Syracuse last year at the B. A. A. games brought the house to its feet.

FIELD LIMITED

The field purposely is being limited to five starters with the possibility that a sixth will be added. The track at the Garden is unusually wide and it is likely that a six man field will not overcrowd things.

It is probable that a record for such a race can be hung up.

The Prout 440-yard race is a contest for the beautiful trophy given by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States in honor of its late president.

Hillman, the Dartmouth coach sent word that Monty Wells would compete in the 45-yard high hurdle race for the New England A. A. U. championship.

Dorchester "Caseys" Celebrate Tonight

The annual athletic night of the Dorchester Lower Mills council, K. of C., will be held in Old Fellows Hall, River st., ten tonight. Among the principal speakers will be Joe McKenney and Paddy Creeden of Boston College, Gus Malley, former Georgetown star; Tim McNamara, formerly of the Boston Braves, and Dub Harrell of Holy Cross.

The committee working for the success of the affair is: Chairman Joe Murphy; Dr. Burns, grand knight; Leo Murphy, Sher Malley, Frank Burke, Arthur Desmond, Malachi Burns, William Hendrickson, John Regan, Jack Drummond.

Chick Shea Treated in Hub for Bruise

Hanover, N. H., Jan. 23—Chick Shea, Dartmouth hockey star, is in Boston receiving treatment for an injured nose received in the recent Yale-Dartmouth hockey game, in New Haven.

Shea received a broken nose in a collision in the McGill game earlier in the season.

Hal Booma returned to Hanover after receiving treatment for an injured knee, also suffered in the Yale game.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"SAY, Mr. Boston, can you tell me how to become a star athlete?" queried one of the freckled-faced youngsters who sells Boston Evening Americans.

There's only one sure way to become a star," replied the veteran "Hop a train to Baltimore and enroll at St. Mary's industrial School."

"Ain't that the place Babe Ruth came from?" queried the youngster.

"Rozhto," piped Mr. Boston. "But that isn't one-third of it. This K. O. Christner, who battles Jack Sharkey in the New York Garden on Friday night, and Joe Dundee, world's welterweight king, who tackles Al Mello at the Boston Garden on the same evening, also got their early training in athletics at St. Mary's."

"I suppose Jack Dempsey also went to St. Mary's," went on the kid as his eyes popped out of his head.

"No, said Mr. Boston, "the Tiger got his early training riding the rods on freight trains. But with Ruth, Christner and Dundee in its lineup St. Mary's did pretty well to my way of thinking.

"Christner was Babe's battery mate. The Bambino tossed up the fast ones to K. O., who never was guilty of a passed ball. Of course there are those persons who still claim Christner is only a catcher, but he asserts he will nevertheless fog Sharkey out Friday night.

"Christner has tipped the world how Ruth was originally a catcher and that he would take his left hand out of the big mitten when he wanted to catch a base runner napping. K. O. took Babe's place behind the bat and Ruth went to work in the box.

"RUTH busted into the big leagues as a pitcher, but once he started to knock the old apple around he pretended he had a lame arm so that he could perform in the outfield each day.

"I was at Tampa, Fla., with the Sox in the spring of 1919. The Babe told Ed Barrow his left wing was causing him so much trouble that he couldn't pitch, but that he'd like to chase flies in the outfield. One day Ruth so far forgot himself as to toss a base runner out at home on as perfect a throw as I've ever seen.

"It was a case of where Ruth loved baseball so much that he wanted to be in there every day.

"CHRISTNER, unlike Ruth, didn't start in athletics until late in life. He was 30 when he entered his first amateur tournament. After he knocked a flock of birds stiff, he hopped into the pro ranks. He went along so-so until he was picked as a setup for Knute Hansen.

"For six rounds Hansen bit Christner much at will. The former Akron rubber worker was still just a catcher. The second round was pretty even. Then Christner decided to toss Hansen out at third and busted him a few times on the chin. The going got so rough that the melancholy Dane faded out of the picture.

"JOE DUNDEE, the other member of the St. Mary's Industrial School's famous athletic trio, punched his way to the world's welterweight championship. On the way up he knocked out Mickey Walker, who had just dropped his middleweight crown to Pete Latzo. Dundee went on to outpoint Latzo.

"AS champion, Dundee has had a rough road to follow. Last summer he stepped into Chicago for an over-weight match with Young Jack Thompson, a negro boxer from the Coast. Thompson must have carried his extra weight in his right duke as he knocked Dundee cold in two rounds.

"If Dundee gets by Mello, he must fight Thompson for the title in New York. But if Al wins, the New York Commission will probably go into a huddle and issue a decree to the effect that Thompson must tackle Mello, the winner to get the shot at Dundee.

"MEANWHILE, if you're a freckled faced newsboy or any other kind of a healthy youngster and wish to become a famous athlete, start looking up the entrance requirements to St. Mary's Industrial School at Baltimore.

Tex Learned Much From Goldfield Go

By JACK LAWRENCE

Copyright 1929, by the New York American, Inc., and Universal Service, Inc.

FOUR years were to elapse before Tex Rickard was again to rock the sporting world with another gigantic boxing enterprise.

He had learned many lessons from the promotion of the Gans-Nelson battle at Goldfield, Nevada, in 1906.

He had learned that the life of a fistic impresario is not all peaches and cream.

There were many irritating incidents connected with the Gans-Nelson fight, but he had surmounted them all. And the profit to himself of $13,000 wasn't hard to take.

During the four years that elapsed between the Gans-Nelson fight and the Jeffries-Johnson battle for the world's heavyweight title, Rickard was engaged with his Nevada interests, his Northern Saloon, gambling, sidesbow and mining properties.

DURING the latter part of 1909 when the proposed match between Jim Jeffries and Jack Johnson was the principal topic of conversation wherever sporting men gathered, several of Rickard's friends urged him to go after the fight.

It is probable that a conference he had with Thomas F. Cole, a wealthy copper magnate and business man of high standing, finally decided Tex to go after the match. Cole convinced him that he could stage the fight and make a handsome profit for himself.

But even though Rickard's handling of the Goldfield fight had been crowned with success he hesitated to tackle anything as big as the Jeffries-Johnson match was certain to be.

"Sunny Jim" Coffroth, of San Francisco, was the big gun among fistic promoters at that time and Rickard doubted whether he could beat him out in a scramble for the bout.

"WHAT do you think I ought to do first?" Rickard asked Cole.

"The first thing to do," replied the practical Mr. Cole, "is to go out and sign up your fighters. After that everything will be plain sailing."

The latter part of Mr. Cole's remark proved subsequently to be about as far from the truth as anything could be. Rickard's troubles didn't really begin until after he had both Jeffries and Johnson under contract.

The trouble he had in getting Jeffries and Johnson into the ring soured him for all time on mixed bouts, particularly bouts in which an important title was to be at stake.

It offers one explanation of why Tex Rickard was never so keen for staging a championship battle between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills.

RICKARD heard the whole country talking about this proposed match and he knew that with public interest at such a pitch the fight could not fail to make money.

Rickard faced plenty of competition when he stepped out to grab himself the Jeffries-Johnson bout. His most dangerous and powerful opponent was James W. Coffroth. But there were others who were hot on the trail of both Jeffries and Johnson.

Eddie Graney was one.

All were said to have ample financial backing. Jack Gleason, an Australian promoter, was reported to have already secured Jack Johnson's signed contract.

Working quietly, Rickard went to Chicago in search of Johnson. Here he learned that the colored giant was appearing in vaudeville in Pittsburgh.

That is where Rickard caught up with him, beating the other promoters to it by a couple of hours, and signed Johnson.

McKINNON IN BIG TOURNEY

One of the most sensational amateur heavyweight matches ever witnessed in the Hub is expected to mark the Massachusetts state boxing championships to be staged at the Boston Arena next Monday night judging by the announcement made by Tom Kanaly, manager of the tournament.

Tom McNeeley of Cambridge, the bricklayer-fighter, who won the heavyweight honors at the recent intercity bouts held at the Boston Garden, has filed his entry for the championships, which indicates that he will again face Douglas McKinnon of Quincy, whom he defeated at the Garden, although the decision was greatly questioned.

Brothers May Box for Ring Title

Cardiff, Wales, Jan. 23 (INS)—Brother will be pitted against brother for the flyweight championship of Wales should the British Boxing Board of Control decide that Eddie John, of Rhondda, shall meet his brother Phineas, in the Arena.

The brothers won the elimination competitions and have been automatically matched for the championship. Their father, however, refuses to allow the fight to take place.

If the British boxing board of control decides that the youths should battle it out the father may relent.

Never in British history have brothers met in a championship fight. There was an instance a few years ago when two brothers named Brown were asked by a promoter to fight, but they refused.

The brothers, Jack and Joe Bloomfield, were at one time boxing in the same division, and another pair of boxers who are fighting at the same weight are sonny and Bill, third of Chelsea but the have not met in championship contests.

CAMERA MEN ON BABE'S TRAIL

New York, Jan. 23—New Yorkers who took their morning constitutional in Central Park today observed a well known figure of heroic proportions striding swiftly along the newsreel men paths that lead from 72nd to 110th st. and return. It was none other than the busting Babe out for a swift stroll with his trainer Artie McGovern.

Babe and Mcgovern had to exercise all their ingenuity to circumvent the corps of photographers which has been camping on the Ruthian doorstep for the past few days, but they did that very thing.

Real estate values are growing around Chicago. It is a very short time since some big men bought the Lincoln Park district for $1 an acre.

Michigan Invited to Send Nine to Japan

Ann Arbor, Jan. 23—The University of Michigan baseball team has been invited to play a series of games in Japan during September.

The invitation was extended by George J. Otsuki, athletic director of Meiji University at Tokio.

It is his plan for the team to leave here during the middle of August and return a few days after the opening of school.

The invitation will be considered at the January meeting of the board of control of athletics.

Whittemore Ties

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 23—Parker W. Whittemore, Brookline, accounted for a tie for fourth place in the Tin Whistle special selected 12 out of 18 hole event here. Whittemore scored 45.

THE REMARKABLE NEW "FINGER-TIP CONTROL"

What it means to you in driving convenience and Safety

WILLYS-OVERLAND is the first producer of automobiles to equip all its passenger cars and commercial vehicles—both Whippets and Willys-Knights—with the wonderful new "Finger-Tip Control."

A single button, conveniently located in the center of the steering wheel, controls all functions of starting the motor, operating the lights and sounding the horn.

This fundamental improvement does away with all troublesome foot fumbling for the starting button, usually located in a somewhat inaccessible position. You can keep your foot always on the brake when starting or re-starting on a hill an obvious safety advantage of major importance.

"Finger-Tip Control" also avoids changing from the comfortable driving position to reach a light switch on the dash. You can at all times keep your eyes on the road, and the hand that operates the button can be flashed back to the rim of the wheel in any steering emergency.

Martha Lee Tells of Salmon Recipes

The salmon is the "King of Food Fishes," as well as King of Fish Foods. But uncertainty of salmon packing is one of the trials of the business. As with all fish, salmon have their own ways, but they are even more mysterious than most fish and more puzzling to scientists. For instance, it is well known that the fish are born in fresh water streams fed by springs or the melting ice of glaciers.

Copyright Martha Lee

But instead of remaining in the stream, the baby fish travels down to the ocean and disappears for a number of years—two to seven, depending on the species.

Out in the world the young fish grows lusty and strong and fat, and becomes delicious eating. When fully grown, the fish goes back to the mouth of the river where it was born and starts its race up the river back to its birthplace. This is instinct with the salmon.

It must go back to its birthplace to spawn and die. But there are many barriers in the rivers in which the salmon are born, and in surmounting these the fish, which eats nothing after it leaves the ocean loses its appearance and ruggedness and becomes thin and unfit for food.

This is why the great salmon fleets, which annually await the salmon, are located at the mouths of the rivers and catch and can the salmon when it is in the finest condition. Many of the best canneries have them complete canneries, so that the fish may be canned almost the moment it is caught, thus insuring canned salmon of the very freshest.

The longest salmon rivers produce the finest, fattest salmon; just why this should be is uncertain, but it has been logically suggested that the fish which has to go farthest up river stores up the greatest amount of food to last them during the journey. This again is instinct.

Salmon is rich in protein value, since authorities say 20 per cent of Pacific salmon caught for canning. First comes the Sockeye, also called the red or the blueback; a deep red only fish of excellent quality.

The Chinook (king salmon or spring) is a large fish, generally deep red, but sometimes white, fatty, rich and delicate, or mottled—nobody knows why. The third type of Silver salmon medium red or rose colored in numbering when canned but has the deep red color and high oil content of the Chinook and Sockeye.

The Humpback or pink salmon is a small species, pale in color and somewhat soft in flesh; it is usually labeled "pink" salmon. The Chum or Keta salmon is a light colored salmon, generally soft in flesh and less oily than any other species; but it is nourishing and inexpensive.

Salmon may be purchased in many sizes of cans for home use, choice of which are, first, the small flat size which contains seven and a half ounces of good quality salmon and sells for approximately 20c, a can, depending on location. For a larger family there is the large flat can which contains 14 ounces and which sells for about 45c, a can.

The pink and red salmon, which may be the Chum, Humpback or Silver salmon, or (if red) may be the Sockeye or Chinook salmon, may be also purchased in good quality salmon in a round, tall, 1lb. ounce can for about 31c. A small flat can of pink salmon, containing 7½ ounces may be also purchased for approximately 25c.

There is also the number one flat size under one pound which is a pink salmon and which sells for 17c, a can.

The salmon cutlet or steak, with which the housewife is, no doubt, familiar, and which is a delicacy in the salmon line and excellent for broiling, is sold in the number one flat can for approximately 37c.

Some new, tested salmon recipes which are interesting you are.

Seaman's Pie—Saute one small diced onion in 2 tbsp. butter a few minutes, then add 1½ tbsp. flour and 1 c. milk, stirring until thick and bubbling. Put alternate layers of mushrooms and salmon in a buttered baking dish. (Use a 7½-ounce can of salmon and a 4-ounce can of mushrooms.) Pour sauce over. Meanwhile, 4 potatoes should be boiled, drained, mashed and seasoned with 2 tbsp. butter, 4 tbsp hot milk, pepper and salt. Pile lightly on top of the fish mixture. Bake in a hot oven until brown.

Spiced Salmon in Cucumber Boats—Remove the bones and skin from the salmon from a large can. Boil ¾ c. vinegar, 12 whole cloves, 12 peppercorns, 6 allspice berries and ½ tbsp. salt for 2 minutes. Pour hot over the salmon and let stand several hours. Drain and serve cold in cucumber boats on lettuce garnished with sliced cucumbers.

Salmon a la Goldenrod—Make a white sauce of 3 tbsp. butter, 4 tbsp. flour, 2 c. milk, ¾ tsp. salt and paprika to taste. Add the salmon from a small can, after removing skin and bones and flaking the fish. Add ½ c. sliced, stuffed olives and the shredded white of 6 hard-cooked eggs. Pour over buttered toast and sift the egg yolk over the top.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Sides Longer on the New Hats

WHIMSICAL small hats by French modistes have one theme in common—a most apparent lengthening of the sides or what might be termed elongated brims were they actually brims. Crowns extend down in studied outline about the hairline but coquettishly are cut away from the forehead and the face.

Chosen for the past part small smooth and round, although a very few modistes place an occasional fold.

From the Parisian viewpoint the smartest midseason hat is that in which one or both sides of extreme depth show turned, twisted or manipulated design for the shape with the open fourth attained by cutting away that section of the hat entirely and using a shallow crown. Or brims are placed high in front for the same effect.

Thibault uses a sleek little crown of black felt, as pictured, with undulated curls of felt composed of rolls placed irregularly about the back and side back of the crown. A note of interest to those who find this type manifestly becoming is the sharp line which curves from the cheek across the forehead, lending prominence to the eye and the arch of the brow.

A trifle more mysterious in effect is Georgette's small model of black felt alternated with section of black bangkok straw, folded softly at one side, and cut about the face in very modernistic curves. The relieving touch is a bow of the straw at the left side. This little hat exposes part of the eyebrows, but much of the forehead.

Quite to the contrary in crown sleekness is the third model shown from Alphonse, of green felt, cut up over one eye, of course, but with the crown full and gathered into soft folds at the back caught under a self bow. Then one whisp by little white flower and one brown one are placed back of each ear.

While following much of the same ideas in covering the ears and exposing the forehead, modistes continue to make their new creations entirely different.

So far, few hats there are exceedingly comfortable on the head are the requisite felt and supple straw, for straw braids are already being employed. Bathbuntls bangkoks and bakous will fashion many of the more exclusive hats of the early season, used alone and combined with felt. There also are many novelties, all of which permit draping, twisting and clever handling.

Introduction is almost nil, for the majority of really smart hats show no trimming feature confined to the body itself. Occasionally a jewelled ornament is seen.

Morality of Men and Women

By L. E. Bisch, M. D., Ph. D
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

MASCULINE morality and feminine morality are not identical. They spring from different sources. First let us see how man's moral sense develops.

From boyhood up man is taught that he must curb his immoral impulses, that he must not lie and steal, that he must be chivalrous to women and protect them in every way.

A man does not feel the compulsion to curb his baser impulses simply because he is told to do so.

He thinks about it, reasons about it, applies all the logic of which he is capable. His ego tells him that he wants to do as he pleases, give way to his instinctive, primitive impulses and have a good time. On the other hand, his ego also dictates that he wants to be well thought of by fellow men, that he wants to rise in their esteem; that finally, if he would succeed and rule other men he must harmonize his impulses with the generally accepted standards of society.

Morality in the man therefore becomes a selfish impulse. He becomes moral through reasoning. He finds, in short, not that he wants to be moral, but that it pays to be moral.

In women on the other hand, morality comes into being through an entirely different mechanism.

Woman becomes moral through feeling and not through logic and reasoning.

Sentiments such as love, pity, sympathy, these are the experienced by her and gradually synthesized by her into moral concepts.

Her moral conscience, in other words, is based on emotion, while in a man it is based on purely intellectual processes.

Now then, since the morality of man largely springs from his reasoning, no amount of reasoning on his part can ever blind him to his own faults or make him belittle them or declare they do not exist.

A man therefore readily admits his faults. He sees them as clearly as others do.

But a woman since her morality springs largely from her feelings may use her reasoning all she chooses herself, to tone down her faults and sometimes even to justify her immorality.

A woman can, in effect, reason herself out of immorality. A man never can.

Women, consequently, may become immoral through love. It is a notorious fact among criminologists that women criminals, of a type themselves, are rare. They become criminal through one of those whose bidding they willingly do and are glad and proud to do.

The difference in the moral nature of the two sexes also explains why women so often sympathize with men who frankly admit their faults and marry them with the firm conviction of reforming them.

Man's morality is more artificial than woman's. A moral woman seldom feels she wants to be more!

Small wonder, then, that a man so often misunderstands a woman's moral point of view while a woman is puzzled about a man.

Household Hints

Mincemeat has a finer flavor if it is heated together in one large pan, rather than in pots like jam.

Make half a pint of white sauce (medium thickness), adding a little extra butter. When the sauce has boiled sufficiently, cool it a little and beat in the yolks of two eggs. Cook for a few minutes without boiling, and add a squeeze of lemon juice before serving it.

A slice of lemon added to stewing prunes improves the flavor considerably.

Why Mary Ran Away

By WINIFRED BLACK

SHE disappeared from boarding school the other day—the girl with the music of fame. She still not leave a word behind her—not a word. And she didn't take a single thing with her but the clothes she had on and a small sum of spending money.

They are dragging the ponds and searching the woods and hunting in the hidden places of the nearest cities, hoping against hope to find her.

I don't believe they will—not yet. You see, I know the maidenly family.

There's mother—nervous, fussy, well-meaning, impossible mother.

There's father—dictatorial, opinionated, pompous father.

There's brother—egotistical, self-centered, bossy brother.

There's the maiden aunt—inquisitive, interferring, fidgety maiden aunt.

There's Uncle Henry—patronizing, interfering, well-meaning, stupid Uncle Henry.

They never left Mary—I'll call her Mary, because that isn't her name—alone a minute. They never had a new dress but the whole family had to comment on it. Mother said it was too long. Aunt Jane said it was too short. Father said it was too bright colored, and brother said it wasn't individual enough.

SHE never made a new friend but that friend had to run the gamut of the family inspection. Father said the friend was too bold. Mother said the friend was too dull. Brother said the friend was ugly and unattractive. And Aunt Jane and the friend was entirely too fond of herself.

All of the poor girl's little faults and failings were discussed and commented on and held up to view. And poor Mary was made to feel that she was a sentimental idiot to even so much as look at any friend at all.

What did she want with friends, anyhow? Didn't she have her family—her dear, devoted, intelligent, interesting family? Weren't they enough for her, pray tell? Wasn't mother the president of a very good club and didn't she read papers at federation meetings?—And wasn't Aunt Jane the best bridge player in town?—What more could you want?

AND father—what a dignified man to have in the family! And brother—didn't he bring his friends from the laboratory home to dinner—spectacled young men who looked at Mary as if she were some kind of a germ?—Why, Mary had a very full life, if she'd only have sense enough to realize it.

They criticized her and praised her and blamed her, and turned the spotlight on her. And now poor Mary is gone, and do you know what I think has happened to her? I think she just went somewhere and got a job as a waitress or a chambermaid, or assistant in some little country library, or something, and took a new name and started out in her own life for her own self.

I LIKE to think of her grinning up at the moon, and saying, "Hello Moon. We're good friends aren't we?"

I like to imagine her buying a new dress—the kind of dress she wants herself. Not the kind that mamma and Aunt Jane think she ought to have.

I like to think of her reading the books she wants to read, with no big brother condescending to her about it.

Poor Mary! Talk about mother love—She had smother love and it nearly smothered her. I'm glad she had the good sense and the courage to get out from under while she still was able to breathe.

A Thrilling Mystery Story of Love and Danger

What Has Happened So Far

Dick Trent, young aviator, on his first Air Mail trip carries a letter from the owner of the field, Old Rand, to his son Tommy. He locates young Rand, drinking, and flies him back to his own field to save him from dismissal. The superintendent, Carmichael, warns Dick he has violated regulations but Old Rand thanks him for the service. Dick falls in love with lovely Mary Rand. Dick tells Lawson, a fellow aviator, of his invention for a skywriting signal code. Lawson informs Dick he is leaving the service to be married. On his last trip Lawson is missing. Dick finds his plane burned and Lawson murdered. A package containing $250,000 is missing. Lawson's skull is crushed in and Dick finds a Luger pistol by the body. Going to Rand field he meets Carmichael and Mary Rand. Mary identifies the pistol as "one my father carries." She asks Dick to drive home with her. On the way he tells her of his love and is happy when she says she loves him. A moment later there is silence between them when she says her father is been away all more.

Now Go on With the Story

CHAPTER 9.

NOT soon was Dick to forget that day. Of all the days in his life it was to stand out as sharp and strange.

They had reached the house, the big Rand house that stood on the hill overlooking the swarming city. A thought made Dick's pulses beat rapidly.

Once in the shadowy hallway, he would seize Mary, hold her fast in his arms, and know rapture with the first and only kiss that had ever mattered.

But the plan was destroyed by circumstances unforeseen. There were certainly shadows in the hallway, and he had entered with her. But, as he put his fingers on her arm, a sudden shyness came over her, and she tore herself free and ran up to the landing, turning to look down on him with shining, happy, embarrassed eyes.

"Dick! Go into the library and read a book. I'll be down quite soon."

'We're Probing a Murder,' He Declared

"My dear young lady, we're not calling for tea—we're investigating a murder."

"All we know is that this is your gun and further that this is the gun that killed him."

But there was true in neither statement. Dick read no hope, and it seemed to him it was patient and that it was hours before she appeared.

Now and then as Dick wandered back and forth, his hands in his pockets, his brows drawn down in concentration, there flashed across his present happiness the thought of poor Lawson and then problem of Lawson's death.

Then he heard her step. He went to the doorway. She stood across the hall, and he noticed that she had changed her frock; some somehow, mysterious to her hair, was looking her most beautiful—for him!

But before he could cross the hall, the faint sound of the doorbell echoed through the house. A pleasant came through the hallway and opened the door. From the threshold a hard, quiet voice said unhesitatingly:

"Want to see Mr. Rand."

"He's not home."

"I'll wait."

A man stepped inside, with another one behind him. It took a detective to see that they were detectives.

Mary Rand walked across the hall.

"My father's not at home, didn't you hear?"

"When do you expect him home?"

"I don't know."

"Where is he?"

"I don't know."

"When did he leave the house?"

"You can ask my father yourself. I'll let you know as soon as he arrives."

The man in charge assumed an almost paternal air. "My dear young lady, we're not calling for tea. We're investigating a murder. And we're not going. We're staying."

Mary turned to Dick with an exquisitely feminine gesture that transferred the entire problem to his shoulders.

"See here," he began, but before he could finish, the door again had opened and Old Man Rand strode into the hallway.

He looked upon the tableau with puzzled eyes. His face seemed drawn. Dick thought, as if he were dutifully tired.

"Mr. Rand?" It was the detective in charge who spoke.

"That's my name. What do you wish?"

"I'm Police Inspector Grahame. I'm covering the case of this man, Lawson, in your employ, who was murdered this morning some 20

Murdered.

"That's right."

But he couldn't be . . .

"He was murdered and the $250,000 he was carrying, have disappeared."

Rand put out his hand in a fumbling gesture. . . . Almost in that moment he looked old and helpless. He glanced around, saw Dick and then his eyes rested on his daughter.

It is time, father. He was killed Mr. Trent here found him."

The detective looked up, and his eyes, eyes narrowed Dick.

"Your name Trent?"

"That's right."

"Glad to have you here. . . .

"Right what to do. Rand demanded. "I don't understand. I was not murdered. By whom?"

"That's what were here to find out." The detective's voice had a sudden edge to it.

"I tell you I'm not telling." Old Man Rand declared. "I don't even know this horrible thing had happened."

The detective took a step forward. He put his hand into his pocket and drew out a black object.

"Ever see this before?"

"Why—why that's my Luger pistol."

"It's the pistol that clubbed Lawson to death," said the detective quietly.

The veteran flyer looked around at the faces that were turned towards him.

"But," he faltered, "surely you can't think that I—but of course, you don't. I ought to explain that I gave that pistol myself to Lawson early this morning. Just before he took off. He had all that money with him. It occurred to me it would be a good thing if he were armed. Our pilots usually aren't."

Mary gave a little laugh of relief.

"Do you see now?" she asked the detective. "Do you see now how it happened? Now will you go away?"

But he did not answer her. Rand, he continued to question her father.

"You gave this pistol to him yesterday morning?"

"Yes."

"Anyone see you?"

"Well I don't remember. There might have been. I don't think so. Old Man Rand suddenly seemed to be revolving on, just what it was all this questioning meant. He was nothing me of the charge.

Were accusing you of nothing," Dick replied. "I'm trying to find out the . . . What all the help we can . . . want to help, only I suggest that you alter your tone. I will see you're right that I'm under suspicion."

"I think I'll . . ." said the inspector, "I think you are under suspicion. All we know is that this is your gun and further that this is the gun that killed him."

He cast one final glance around the room. "This will do for the present. We'll get in touch with you later. Come on, Markel." The man with him threw the door open. For an instant the inspector paused.

"I might tell you I'm leaving my assistant outside," he said. "We want to know everyone who comes in here today."

"And everyone who leaves?" said Mary with sudden anger.

"No one is going to leave!" returned Inspector Grahame. And clapping his hat on his head, he slammed the door behind him.

'Rainbow Chasing'; The Exciting Story of Madge Sayre and Her Search for Love

By THOMAS FIDGELOW

CHAPTER 15

AND because he could refuse her nothing, and because she said she could manage any horse, he gave way to her, and they left the stable yard with Madge riding sidesaddle delicately over the gravel road, while Madge called out gayly that she was a perfect lamb.

Michael, mounted on a splendid-looking sorrel, edged his horse to her side.

But as they turned toward home again along a twisting woodland path Michael's mood changed. His bantering . . . left him, and he . . . her, "Don't either of you, Madge! She may get away from you."

He had spoken too late, for at that moment Madge realized that she had . . . more of fruitless straining on the bit . . . said to . . . and . . . his mood . . . Madge discovered just . . . and the bit between . . . to . . . She could do nothing but sit . . . ride for it, and she was terrified.

They flew down the path, Madge having to bend low on the mare's neck to avoid the overhanging branches, while she could hear Michael shouting . . .

Out of the woods . . . and increased her pace as she turned to cross a wide sweep of meadow. Madge could not even guide her. And suddenly she saw, directly ahead of her racing mount, the steep sides of a little creek.

As Madge's runaway mount headed for the creek bank, Michael, with solid horror in his heart, put in his spurs and rode as he had never ridden before.

His horse's head reach Sultana's flank, forged ahead—and the next instant Michael had grasped Madge's reins in his right hand. A second later, and he had leaped from his galloping horse and, suspending his full weight on Sultana's bridle, was being dragged along.

That night, long after dinner, Madge tried to express a little of the gratitude and admiration that was in her heart for Michael.

"It was the bravest thing I ever saw," she confessed.

"My dear, don't exaggerate and make a hero out of me when you read every week of a New York cop doing as much!" Michael dismissed it.

She was vaguely disappointed, and presently went upstairs to her room.

Then a knock sounded at her door, and Madge opened it wide.

"Michael!" she whispered.

Swiftly he took her in his arms. Tenderly he kissed her forehead.

"Good night, my sweet!" he murmured. "Good night!"

Madge stood looking at the closed door. A blush flamed from her throat to her cheeks.

Why?

She walked slowly across the big room, furnished so beautifully with colonial pieces. She stood gravely surveying her reflection in the long mirror. Was she not beautiful? Was not her hair of liquid gold, and her eyes of dazzling violet?

Then why had her bridegroom left her alone?

Meanwhile, up and down his own room, Michael was pacing nervously. How beautiful she was! How he loved her! With a passion he had not realized he possessed. Her throat—at her white throat. How could he brutally take advantage of the fact that Church and State had proclaimed them one flesh when he knew that her heart was given to another man?

Through the trees he saw a light gleaming from a window. On perceiving it, he quickened his step. Then his old tutor, the Reverend Donald Borden, had not yet retired.

Michael rapped and the 70-year-old minister opened the door.

"Michael!" he cried.

"Padre!" exclaimed Michael, using his pet term of endearment for the old chap. The two gripped hands.

"I was coming to see you tomorrow, Michael," the Padre remarked as they sat down. "Just going to 24 hours to show your mind about the place." He paused and looked searchingly at his younger companion. "What's up? Something troubling you, my boy?" He laid an affectionate hand on Michael's shoulder.

"Have to talk to some one, Padre." Michael smoked in silence a few moments before he continued. "I do not quite know where to do. I love her, Padre—more than I can tell."

"Naturally, my boy—but what has happened? Lovers' tiff?"

Michael sighed. "Deeper than that, Padre. I tell you things I can tell no other man I'm Madge . . ."

"Well?"

Silence again. And then Michael went on. "She was perfectly straight with me. She is truth itself. Before we were married she confided in me that she had been fascinated by a fellow utterly unworthy of her."

"Then, naturally, she no longer loved him," the Padre asked.

His keen eyes on Michael's face.

"No, she told me, and I know she told me the truth. And she was at the moment—that she felt nothing but contempt for him; he one else in the world knew that her heart was given to another man?

"No, she told me, and I know she told me the truth. And she was at the moment—that she felt nothing but contempt for him; he one else in the world knew that her heart was given to another man?

"Then what is the matter, my boy? Why are you not happy?"

"Because I am a man with all the burning desires and passions that make up a man. But I'm damned if I'll be a cad and take the attitude that I will insist on having anything she does not want to give. But I'm having an awful fight with myself."

"A fight you will win," the old man put in warmly. "I know you, Winchester." And I approve of what you are doing; and now for an old friend's advice. What I am going to say, Michael, is going to sound like the silliest platitude, but having passed the three score and ten years, I have found that some of the oldest and most apparent truisms contain a great deal of wisdom. My advice to you, my dear boy, is to remember that time heals everything." There's hardly an ill to which the human heart is subject, hardly a sore that Time cannot heal. Give that time. Michael. He spoke tenderly to her, and definitely patient, and I am quite sure that before long you will be sitting in that very chair where you are now, telling me that you are the happiest married man in this wide and happy land of ours. Patience—be patient and yet more patience."

Back in his own room in a calmer frame of mind, Michael started as a clap of thunder crashed suddenly overhead. A storm was upon them, and in a few seconds was raging furiously; the rain descended in torrents.

Michael was closing his window when his door was flung open. He turned to see Madge, pale but wonderfully beautiful in her dressing gown, but a filmy part of black chiffon pajamas, her little feet thrust into a pair of gold evening slippers.

"Michael! Michael! I'm frightened!" she cried in genuine fear.

He opened his arms and she ran to him like a terrified child. She clung to him, and he lifted her in his arms and sitting down on a chair, took her on his knees.

"What a fuss!" he said tenderly. "What a scene about nothing. Nothing can hurt you, my sweet!"

But she was still frightened, both her arms about his neck, so that blood pounded wildly through his veins at the touch of her.

But he must not . . . She had come to him unthinking in her fear . . . He must not . . . He must not even let her know her heavy tempted him. He must play the game according to the rules as he saw them.

He sat there holding her while the storm crashed overhead. Presently the lightning and the deafening thunder went farther away from them, although they could still hear distant grumbling. Still nervous, but no longer so tense, Madge grew sleepy.

She slept, and Michael sat holding her. Then, with infinite precaution, he unmanged without waking her to lay her on the outside of his bed. He covered her with a silk dressing gown, and until she woke at dawn, he sat silently watching by her side.

The next two weeks were nightmares for Madge.

Was this married life she wondered. Every night, Michael would carry her round to wish her good-night, after which she would hear awakes wondering what caused his attitude of coldness.

She was upset, unsettled, irritable. So that when Michael suggested they go to Long Island to escape the heat, she acquiesced gladly, for a change of scene might bring something, anything, that would wipe out their misunderstanding.

One evening, in desperation, Madge tried to find solace in talking over her troubles with her father.

"Aren't you happy, my dear?" he asked after a bitter remark had escaped her.

"Is anyone happy?" she fenced. "Not as for Michael." he reminded her.

"Isn't the question more if he cares for me?" Madge got up and touched a bell. Anna entered. "Anna, tell them to send cocktails."

"Now, this, isn't it?" her father quenched a little dubiously.

"Oh, I feel restless," Madge confided. "Father, does a man love his wife after . . ." she paused.

"If what, my dear?"

"If he kisses her a brotherly good-night?" Madge said darkly.

Rave coughed. "Well," he answered with evident embarrassment, "some things, my dear, must run their course. I can rather inclined to think that the old-fashioned love, the love that is slow in forming, is deeper, truer and more steadfast than that born of the passion of today. I know I come of a different generation, but I have always been took on to old fogies as knowing nothing, but I believe that Michael loves you with the depth and sincerity that many of itself make him a little diffident. Remember my dear you have not been married a month. Perhaps Michael feels a certain delicacy—" he stopped then. It is such an awkward question to discuss. But I will say this: I am confident that you have nothing to fear who will mean ultimate happiness for you, a man, who . . ."

He was interrupted by the entrance of Michael, who was followed by Anna carrying a tray on which was cocktails.

"I have just received a cable from my sister," Michael said, "Prom the Duchess." Sayre supplemented with evident relish, glad of the opportunity to drop an awkward discussion with his daughter.

Michael waited until Anna had left the room. "You know, Madge, that Edith and I have always been pals. She has a son, and now she is about to divorce Penndale, and she wants me badly. You do see I can't let her down, don't you?"

"Of course, Michael!" Madge answered, hoping he intended to ask her to accompany him.

"I can't possibly refuse, considering the circumstances," he went on. "The Berengaria sails tomorrow. I would be glad my reservation is being taken care of now."

Madge got up and took the tray that Anna had placed on the table. She offered her father and Michael cocktails and took one herself. As she raised her glass she decided that while Michael was away, she would not be shut. She would fill the huge house and give party after party!

"Have a luck to your journey, Michael!" she cried, a trifle hysterically. "And don't worry about me! I'll amuse my if while you're gone!"

Just as Madge feels a twinge of jealousy the tempter comes to her side. Read of this tomorrow.

'The Crime in the Crypt'; A New Story in Six-Day Novel Series

time I was ordered to report, I collected Mimi and her swain.

Mimi's brown hair stood out will ly on all sides and I wondered afresh why girls thought such curls pretty or attractive.

I remembered this was the sort of curls the unfortunate Hilda had, three weeks, like tiny corkscrews.

Miss saw me studying it and laughed.

"I always looks horrid the first day," she said. "And I didn't have it set I can do it better myself. Just you wait till you see it after I've put it into shape!"

"I'm sure it's beautiful," I told her hastily and mendaciously.

Two or three bits of string fell from her head or neck into her lap, and she gathered them up, laughing.

"The most primitive place, that barber's," she explained. "You should have seen them struggling with the cords!"

"What are the cords for?" I asked, idly, taking the scraps she thrust at me because she wanted to get rid of them.

"Oh, they're part of the performance," she said. "You should have gone in with me. Every man ought to see a permanent wave put in once in his life! He'd never wish he was a woman after that!"

"Do they tie the curls?" I asked, stuffing her rubbish in my pocket.

"Yes, of course."

We went on home, and it was not till I recalled my own room that I remembered the scraps Mimi had given me, and I emptied my pocket into the waste basket.

At luncheon that day, the conversation turned on old times.

Mrs. Clevedon was interested and told funny anecdotes of John's capers as a small child.

"John, dear," she said, "what was the name of the dog that rescued you when you fell into the lake?"

"Carlo," he said, smiling at her.

"Nonsense, we never had a dog named Carlo."

"But I mean the one who pulled you out of the lake in your little kilted skirt. You wore dresses then."

"Oh, that dog. Yes, what was his name now?"

"You can't have forgotten! His picture hangs in your room—"

"Oh, yes, old Nero, wasn't it?"

"No, it wasn't Nero. I don't see how you can forget it."

"Yes, but I'm growing forgetful.

Mrs. Clevedon said no more about it, but all through the rest of the meal, she was distraught and seemed to be trying to remember the dog's name.

It was seldom I saw any of the servants at Clevedon House, except those who belonged in the living rooms when on duty.

But that evening, directly after dinner, I ran up to my bedroom to get a piece of carved bodo that I had promised to show Vera. I had one next her at dinner and we had a pleasant conversation about my toys and I had collected over there.

As I went into my bedroom I saw a housemaid there, turning down the bed for the night.

I took the bodo from its wrapping and threw the paper into the waste basket. They fell outside and the girl quickly picked them up.

She was about to throw them in the basket, when she exclaimed:

"My goodness, Mr. Oakley, sir, have you had a pet, master?"

I turned to look at her. What could she mean by such a question?

"Why, here's some permanent strings in your waste basket, sir," the girl broke down, and I saw two or three spirally curled cords, perhaps an inch long.

I looked at them, wondering what they were and where they had come from.

I was not especially interested except at a fleeting thought that somebody else had been using my room, for surely I never put them there. Later I remembered they were the ones Mimi had given me.

I hurried downstairs again, and found Vera waiting for me in the library. She was alone, and though surprised at this, I was very pleased.

"Where's John?" I asked, as I sat down beside her on a big chair.

"He's gone to his mother's room. He thinks he remembers the name of the dog Queen, how the rescued you."

"Mr. Oakley, did you know John before he had the accident to his finger?"

"Only slightly," I told her. "We crossed on the same steamer and I saw him now and then on the boat, but I had only one conversation with him and that was the day we landed."

"You don't travel together after that?"

"Not at first. I next saw him in Wembury, several weeks later. It was there that his accident with the electric fan occurred."

"How did you happen to meet there—you two?"

"I found out he was staying in the town, and I went to call on him," I replied. "He received me cordially, and we struck up a friendship almost at once."

"He had hurt his finger then?"

"Why, very day. It happened . . . I'll be . . . I'll . . . I'll . . . tune a doctor in town knew John, and called . . . see . . . people.

So, he took great interest in his patient; sometimes, I thought, a little too much.

"What do you mean by that?"

"Oh, nothing." I said, realizing I had again led up to the Wembury mystery. "Only I wanted to talk to John and discuss lots of things, but the doctor was afraid any serious conversation would bring on a feverish condition. So Clevedon had to be kept quiet."

"And then you became his secretary, then and there?"

"Yes. He had to have somebody to write for him, and after his . . . I . . . offered . . . The hotel seemed . . . could care for him, but he needed a . . . I . . . wrote to you several times for him."

"Yes, the letters weren't at all like his own, but there he comes."

ARRIVING AT A SLAM BID AT CONTRACT.

CONTRACT BIDDING: South passing West with all four suits stopped, but only two of them a bid of two Hearts, and there is doubly stopped, bids one No Trump no further bidding.

Had three suits been doubly stopped he would have bid two No Trumps, with four suits doubly stopped three No Trumps. This is the conventional method of bidding No Trump hands rationally.

North passing East with a singleton Spade takes out with the higher ranking of his three four card suits, bidding two Hearts.

West jumps the bid to five Hearts to show support for Hearts beyond game probability and thus invite a Slam bid by partner. East, holding much greater high-card strength than his partner can reasonably expect, and assured of more than three Hearts in his partner's hand by the jump assist, thereupon bids six Hearts, securing the contract at that bid. A possibly sounder bidding with this hand would be for West to bid four Hearts, East to raise to five and West then to bid for a Small Slam.

Auction Bidding: At Auction bridge, East similarly takes out his partner's bid of two Hearts, and there is no further bidding.

South correctly opens the Queen of Clubs and a Grand Slam is made.

Tomorrow's article will explain the play and scoring of the hand.

BAER FACTS
by Arthur "Bugs" Baer

ROBBERY in New York has now reached a stylish pitch as high as the top button on Beau Brummel's best vest.

The boys who recently put the finger on Park Avenue's most exclusive jewelry garage were so splendid manners that too, would make a finale hopper look like a cake-eater's crumb.

Their exquisite choice in personal adornment caused them to pass up the half-million dollar Nassak diamond as being too vulgar.

They looked over the Nassak chunk of ice and discarded it. The leader said:

"Too big. There should be a polar bear on it."

If it had been a ruby they could have used it as a tail light.

There are no more gangs in New York. They are well dressed cliques.

They walked into the jewelry store carrying very fine walking sticks and wearing their blue afternoon guns.

They had left their pearl-handled evening gats at home.

Their walking sticks were shot [illegible] on the southern [illegible] they were [illegible] The [illegible] could then to paint [illegible]

There were four members of this silent pilgrimage of serious thinkers. The leader had not said Dapper Dan home because his spats didn't match his necktie.

The leader spoke to the salesman in a well modulated threat: "We would like to look over some real diamonds. Object, fruitmonds."

They then scraped up a couple of hundred dollars' worth of rare and costly building material and [illegible] out on double breasted [illegible]

The proprietor, not to be outdone in original politeness asked them to call again as he was expecting a new load of fresh Kohi-noor berries.

By the time the police got there with their dancing shoes, the orchestra had left.

The description of the neighbor's children engaged in this charming prank indicates that the fashion plates you see in magazines have suddenly turned Robots.

GIVE MOTHER A CHANCE

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

A VERY conscientious and sensible little mother recently took her tiny girl to the family physician. The mother was frantic and worn out. The small girl wouldn't eat. Attractive foods were placed before her but she left the table with most of it untouched. Something had to be done.

The child was not losing weight and was apparently well, but the mother was worried over the condition.

"Do you feed her between meals?" inquired the doctor.

"No," replied the mother, "I have tried to keep her feeding periods on strict schedule ever since she was born. I can't understand it."

After some inquiries and a bit of investigation, however, the mother discovered that her sister who lived two blocks away and several neighbors with whom the child spent quite a little time were taking the responsibility out of her hands and the tiny girl was being filled with cookies candy and other dainties at any time she appeared on the scene.

The mother remonstrated with the child's aunt saying that she was trying to keep the little girl well by having her eat nothing between meals; to which the aunt replied, "I think you are perfectly brutal about Nancy. We ate when we were at home, didn't we? It never hurt us, did it? You make me tired with your new fangled notions!" And I presume that Nancy's mother felt like retorting that her sister made her equally tired with her worn-out propensity for attending to a matter which was not in any sense her business.

Being the one person in closest contact with a child, the mother should be allowed to outline and abide by any plans she may make for that child's welfare. And relatives and neighbors should keep off. No matter how silly they may feel that the mother is, the child I her responsibility, and they have no right to meddle. And every mother has a perfect right to see that they do not meddle.

Another mother of a small child had gotten the youngster healthfully in the fourth summer with never a taste of candy. The mother provided sweets in plenty with fresh fruits custards and simple puddings with the child's meals but between the meals. The child was the picture of health. One day grandmother arrived with a box of chocolates and, after "arm and woe, incense," because the mother would not let the child sample them. Again the age-old story: "Well, you had candy when you were her age, and you're still alive. I guess it won't kill her. And probably it would not have killed her. But the mother was following a schedule which she had carefully thought out, which had been approved of by a physician and which seemed to be all right for the child because she thrived on it. And the important point of that little encounter was not the question of eating or not eating candy, but this: the grandmother had had her opportunity to raise children and had probably permitted no interference in it either, but now she was unwilling to concede that privilege to her daughter.

Well-meaning friends and relatives make it so hard for a mother when they do not acknowledge her supreme right to rear a child as she thinks best. I am not speaking now of extreme cases, where a mother is deliberately neglecting or abusing a child. That, of course, calls for interference. I am talking about the average American mother who is trying her level best.

Even if her methods look absurd to you even if you wouldn't follow the same procedure with your child, don't meddle. It is not your responsibility. Give mother a chance!

PLATE IX—With father in jail and mother lost in the Rouge traffic, what has become of the children? At first they took care to avoid evil, when convenient, and spent many a happy hour at the literary teas, church bazaars and sotees of refined society. Little Prudence, front and center, is seen in animated conversation with Theodore Dreiser and Mrs. Sinclair Lewis; but little things, innocent enough in themselves, often lead where others follow.

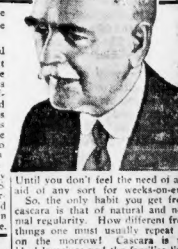
WHAT A DOCTOR KNOWS ABOUT CONSTIPATION



There IS a way of overcoming the tendency to constipation. And here is how you can PROVE it.

The next time your bowels need any assistance, don't take the first laxative that comes to mind. Take one the druggist can assure you is made with CASCARA. Just as effective as taking force, and good for the system. Indeed, it helps make good blood. For cascara is nothing but the bark of a tree. The Indians chew this bark, and live to an old age without a day's sickness.

What happens when you cascarize the bowels? They will usually function well for SEVERAL DAYS. One more dose—no larger, and perhaps smaller than the first and the bowels function of their own accord for a still longer time.

Until you don't feel the need of any aid of any sort for weeks-on-end.

So, the only habit you get from cascara is that of natural and normal regularity. How different from things one must usually repeat on on the morrow! Cascara is the ideal laxative; and the familiar Rile candy Cascaret is doubtless its ideal form. Children beg for these tasty tablets, and many men and women wouldn't think of ANY-THING else for the purpose. And EVERY druggists has them.

CASCARETS
They Work While You Sleep!

LINING UP FOR CONTEST OVER 'EL' FARE

MILLIONS FOR BIG CHANGES

Both sides are lining up for a battle against possible increased fares on the Elevated road a week from next Monday when a public hearing will be held in Gardner Auditorium at the State House on the $50,000,000 reorganization and public control extension bill filed by the special commission.

In setting the early date for the hearing, the legislative committee on metropolitan affairs was guided by the wishes of Pres. Gaspar G. Bacon of the Senate.

In its bill, as shown by an accompanying report, the commission proposes extension of rapid transit lines, including extension of the Boylston st. line whose tunnel ends in Governor sq.

Because no one but members of the commission, the clerk of the House and the necessary printers in whose hand the bulky document is now, had seen the bill today, there was considerable confusion on Beacon Hill over its provisions.

But many members of the Legislature asserted that any attempt to allow the Elevated to boost fares above the present 10 cents would be bitterly fought.

Representative Renton Whidden of Brookline asserted in a general comment on the bill's provisions that "if we are to have public ownership, and that is what this bill practically amounts to, from what I have read, I believe the deficits, if they are any, should be assessed on the cities and towns of the district—as they are now."

FARE INCREASES

Two extensions of the rapid transit facilities are also proposed, as is the purchase of the Chelsea division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway system.

The plan, submitted to the House of Representatives and being studied by its members today, at once evoked a storm of discussion. Legislative members said the fight, already developed, would become not only the major feature of this session, but one surpassing all previous battles over Elevated matters.

The plan is that of the special commission, appointed to study the rapid transit needs of Boston and other Greater Boston communities. The plan is accompanied by a bill providing the features the report outlines in detail, and with explanations, and comment.

That part of the bill providing the opening for increased fares was declared at the State House as being certain to sound the "call to arms." This section reads:

"The unit fare is limited to 10 cents. If additional funds are required, zoning can be tried and local special fares can be raised, and if these prove inadequate, the legislature must intervene to solve the difficulty. If the legislature refuses to act, the unit fare can be raised."

A highlight of the report is its provision for the extension for a 10-year period of public control of the Elevated. State House leaders of the faction declared this feature would in itself and immediately bring in all the strife of the past over the problem of public control or ownership; and would add fuel to the "flames of strife" already begun.

The report recommended rapid transit extension of the Elevated into North Cambridge, Somerville, Everett, Malden, Medford, Melrose, Chelsea, Revere, East Boston, Brighton, Brookline, Jamaica Plain, Roslindale and West Roxbury.

Other outstanding recommendations included in the gigantic expansion scheme are the purchase of the Chelsea division and its lease to the Elevated, the reorganization and refinancing of the Elevated and the creation of a metropolitan transit district the extension of the period of public control and the provision for the return of the road to private management, the reconstruction of the Chelsea st. bridge and the financing plan for the extension.

Among other features are:

Acquisition by the transit district of the present subways, rapid transit lines and structures of the Elevated.

Immediate extension of all leases of existing subways.

Division of carrying charges of new subways and rapid transit lines with the provision that the amount to be borne by taxation cannot exceed 50 per cent of the carrying charges.

Refinancing of the Elevated which will bring about an annual net saving of $1,000,000.

Appointment of one additional trustee by the governor of Boston.

9 WOUNDED IN SHIP MUTINY

Tampico, Mexico, Jan. 23 (INS)—Three sailors were seriously wounded and a half-dozen others are under treatment today for lacerations, following a mutiny on board the Norwegian steamship Victo.

It required 50 soldiers from the Tampico garrison to subdue the mutineers.

The trouble began on Sunday night.

Rudolf Rhomansen, Ame Kogsould and Any Bentsen, the alleged ringleaders, were locked up in the Tampico jail, but later were turned over to the Victo's captain for trial in Norway.

"Talkies" Won't Let Guests Sleep and Suit Is on

Los Angeles, Jan. 23 (AP)—Much has been said in jest and truth about the slumbers of certain movie-goers being disturbed by the talking movies. Listen then to the complaint of W. G. Howard, who claims the motion picture world's latest attraction has ruined his hotel business.

The suit he has filed against an adjacent movie house asks for $3500 damages and presents the allegation that during the days of the silent drama his hostelry thrived, but that since the advent of the "talkies" many of his guests, unable to sleep, have moved out.

12 DRY AGENTS GO ON 'STRIKE'

Detroit, Jan. 23 (INS)—Co-incidental with the admission by Sinnner C. Sleeper, chief of the customs border patrol, that he had lost his fight to remain at his office in Detroit, federal officials were faced today with a "strike" by 12 inspectors of the patrol who handed in their resignations.

Sleeper was ordered transferred to Tampa, Fla., a week ago, as a result of an investigation into his organization which allegedly disclosed that most of his staff of 129 inspectors were in the pay of bootleggers.

Twenty-seven members of the patrol were arrested following the probe.

Schooner Burns

Eastport, Me., Jan. 23—The four-masted schooner Kingsway was burned to the water's edge when she caught fire at Broad Cove.

NEW BUS LINE IS VICTORY FOR HUB GROUP

With the recent inauguration of Boston Elevated motor bus service from the South End to City Point over the route of the old Bay View line, one group of public spirited Boston business men sat back, breathed easier, and smiled the smiles of victors.

That group, headed by Edward W. Joyce, president of Joyce Bros. & Co., South End clothiers, has been laboring for months to obtain for the South End district adequate bus transportation to take the place of electric car lines abandoned by the Elevated.

The committee which has done so much to make the South End accessible to Greater Boston residents announced today that its work is virtually completed.

Four bus lines now serve the district, Joyce pointed out. One runs between Northampton st. and Kneeland st.; another between Columbus sq. and the South Station; a third between Copley sq. and Rowes Wharf via Huntington ave., Dartmouth st., Stuart st., Kneeland st., and Atlantic ave., returning via Essex st. and Harrison ave. The fourth line is the new established Bay View route.

Both Joyce and General Manager Dana of the Boston Elevated said today that the great need now is for the public to familiarize itself with the improved transportation facilities within the South End area. Gasoline-electric buses of the most modern type are in operation on all four lines.

Egypt Accepts Treaty

Washington, Jan. 23 (AP)—American Minister Gunther at Cairo has telegraphed the State Department that the Egyptian ministry of foreign affairs has sent him Egypt's adherence to the Kellogg anti-war treaty, which is being forwarded to Washington.

"Red-headed Actress Defends Her Type

Frankie Moore.

Frankie Moore, leading lady of the "Bohemians" burlesque at the Gayety Theater, is red-headed, but she doesn't want that held against her. "We readheads are usually accused of everything we are not," claims Miss Frankie. "Of course we have tempers," she goes on to say, "but we are not temperamental. Contrary to popular opinion, we are easy to get along with. We have a sense of humor and we are quite tractable; all you have to do with us is give us our own way and we won't bother you. It is not true that we want our own way all the time. We only want it when we are right. We are right all the time." And this is all the piquant lady has to say on the subject.

HUB FAVORITE IS BACK

DOES MALE IMPERSONATION

George White's "Scandals" has brought back to Boston an old favorite in the person of Belle Osborne, former radio and vaudeville entertainer. As the girl with the low voice, she does a male impersonation. De Mirjian Studios photo.

The Doctor Took One Look—

"FLU"

He had a bit of a headache and a couple of chills—but pshaw!—it was only a "slight" cold and he'd shake it off! That was yesterday. Today he was in bed, burning with fever one moment and the next shivering with chill. The doctor took one look and—"Flu!"

Nearly every case of "flu" starts with a cold. Do what you can to avoid colds. Stay out of crowds as much as you can. Avoid sneezers and coughers. But—if you catch cold—lose no time in breaking it up.

At the first sign of a cold, take HILL'S CASCARA QUININE. These famous tablets break up a cold in one day because they:

1. Check the Cold Germs
2. Allay the Fever
3. Open the Bowels
4. Tone the system

Those are the four effects you want for safety, and only Hill's supplies them.

Get Hill's in the red box—all druggists.

Air Course Offered Harvard Students

Harvard students will be given a chance to take a course in naval flying, according to the announcement made today by Lieut. Thomas of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who is in charge of student naval training.

Harvard seniors who plan to enter the Naval Aviation Reserve will be given an opportunity to take a ground course in flying at the naval flying station located at Squantum under the direction of experienced officers.

Naval Bill Facts

Failure of Republican Party to Prevent a Filibuster Will Make It the Duty of the American People to Drive That Party Out of Power at the Next Election

Let us not forget a few salient facts that bear directly upon the naval replacement bill now before the Senate.

In the first place, this bill marks no departure from our naval policy. It is only a belated step in the carrying out of that policy.

If we build the fifteen 10,000-ton cruisers authorized by this bill, our navy will then have only 305,000 tonnage in cruisers.

And this total is nearly 90,000 tons less than the British tonnage in cruisers.

Therefore, even after all the modern cruisers authorized by the pending bill have been added to our fleet, it will still be far below the 5-5-3 ratio agreed upon by the United States, Great Britain and Japan under the Hughes naval treaty as the relative strength of their naval forces during the life of that treaty.

For the Senate to permit the pending bill to be defeated by a filibuster would, as Senator Swanson of Virginia said the other day, give great satisfaction to certain British politicians. They would promptly hail the defeat of this bill as an abandonment by the United States of equality with the British as the permanent naval policy of this country.

On the other hand, the passage of this bill would prove the determination of the United States to adhere to the naval policy outlined in the Hughes naval treaty. And that treaty could never have been ratified by the Senate but for the solemn promise of its supporters that for the future the United States, in exchange for naval SUPREMACY had accepted naval EQUALITY with the British.

Sixty-eight Senators signified their intention of voting for the pending bill and supporting our naval policy of equality with the British. Only eighteen Senators have thus far refused to do likewise. And of the eighteen not more than twelve will dare vote in open Senate against the pending bill.

All that is needed to pass this bill, which has the over whelming support of public sentiment in this country, is for the Republican leaders of the Senate to give the sixty-eight Senators in favor of this measure a chance to vote upon it before adjournment.

It was a REPUBLICAN President and a REPUBLICAN Congress which surrendered our naval supremacy eight years ago. And under a REPUBLICAN administration, REPUBLICAN Congresses for the last eight years have deliberately refused to perform the constitutional obligation of the Congress "to provide and maintain a navy."

If the present Republican Senate fails to bring the naval replacement bill to a vote at this session, that failure will only add to the disgraceful record of the REPUBLICAN PARTY in dealing with the navy ever since the Republicans were restored in power at both ends of Pennsylvania avenue in March, 1921.

It is up to the Republican Party, therefore, to prevent the defeat by a filibuster of the naval replacement bill.

And the failure of the Republican Party to do that will make it the duty of the American people to discipline that party for unpatriotic neglect of duty at the next election.

Quiet and Efficient

An Instance of the Good Work Accomplished by the Frances E. Willard Settlement

It is two weeks now since the blow fell on the old people. There was a flurry to interest the public for a time. There was sympathy, of course. Then it was announced that they had been "taken care of."

But before this announcement could be made, a Boston organization went deep into its resources to provide for the stranned inmates of the Cooper Homestead at Dedham who, believing themselves established in comfort and security for the rest of their days, suddenly discovered that the homestead was in bankruptcy—and they were without either money or a haven.

Most of the elderly inmates of the home had turned over to the proprietors all their savings in return for a "life membership." However, life seemed drab and drear indeed when word finally was brought that the supposed permanent residence was not permanent at all.

Officials investigated. There was talk of the poorhouse which, no matter under what designation, is still a poorhouse.

Then the Frances E. Willard Settlement stepped in, quietly and unobtrusively. The disturbed men and women in the home were given aid and comfort. They were housed at establishments conducted by this organization. They were assured that their worries now were needless.

It was just one incident in the routine work of the Frances E. Willard Settlement, but to the elderly, and frightened, men and women it was salvation itself.

Such an organization is dependent upon and needs the support of the public. Not alone "moral support," but material aid.

The treasurer is Mrs. Elmer A. Stevens and the organization's headquarters are at 44 Chambers street, Boston.

No reference is needed, of course, but just by way of attaining that nice, comfortable feeling it is suggested that any one, or all, of the former Cooper Homestead residents be queried.

Wanted, a Slow Car

Per Father to Control

Almost any good car, high priced or low priced can do sixty miles an hour. Some guarantee one hundred miles per hour. All interesting, for the whole world, America especially, is in a hurry.

---

But what manufacturer will set the minds of fathers and mothers at rest by advertising an automobile the speed of which can be regulated to suit the father when he sends out his children, one of them driving?

---

Many a man would feel better if he knew that his children in these "whoopee" days could not drive his car faster than thirty miles an hour. Some simple device might arrange that, full speed to be restored at the owner's option.

Meditations of a Wife

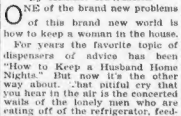
By HELEN ROWLAND

ONE of the brand new problems of this brand new world is how to keep a woman in the house.

For years the favorite topic of dispensers of advice has been "How to Keep a Husband Home Nights." But now it's the other way about. That pitiful cry that you hear in the air is the concerted wails of the lonely men who are eating off of the refrigerator, feeding the cat, or reading the farewell note pinned to the portieres.



Woman is "on the GO!" Woman has always been "on the go," when she had the time, the money and the liberty. And now that there are no bars on the doors and windows, no large broods of babies clinging to her skirts, and nothing but a can-opener to hold her to the kitchen, woman is proving that it is SHE, not man, who is the restless sex!

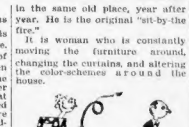
When a man travels, it is in order to GET somewhere. But a woman starts going just in order to GO.

When Father takes the car out, it is because he wants to reach the office, the club or the golf links. It's always Mother who says, "Oh, let's go for a DRIVE!" Somewhere —anywhere—just so she keeps going!

It is woman, not man, who can't bear to "stay put." It is woman, not man, who is always looking forward to "moving day," summer trips, winter cruises and automobile tours.

Man is a domestic animal, like the cat, who prefers to loll around in the same old place, year after year. He is the original "sit-by-the fire."

It is woman who is constantly moving the furniture around, changing the curtains, and altering the color-schemes around the house.



A man doesn't like to have things changed or moved. He wants to find the same chair in the same place, every night, and is hurt if you even turn the cushion to hide the worn place. Any suggestion of newness about the home upsets him.

That is why cleaning days are his pet aversions. Just that unfamiliar shiny, neat look about the room grates on his sensibilities. It is hard to get him to buy new clothes—or even to change his old ones.

A woman wants a new hat every few weeks and new shoes every few minutes; but a man will cling to a moth-eten cap and sweater until they fall apart in his hands.

A woman is always eager to make new friends; but a man hates to go even to a party where he will meet strange people.

Man is a creature of HABIT! That is what keeps him putting his hatchkey into the same old lock and wiping his feet on the same old doormat, long after the woman inside the house has ceased to charm him. Man MUST have a HOME! But now that woman has found her "going foot," how will he keep her IN it?

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

DON'T be a rabbit this year.

Buck up and face life like a man.

A rabbit always has a hole handy.

When things get too strenuous for him he escapes through that hole.

Life is just one escape after another for a rabbit.

Also for certain humans.

Some people duck into holes to escape reality—strange and peculiar holes which they call by various names.

One of the favorite escapes for cowardly, lazy humans is sickness.

They may dread meeting strange people—or resent their inability to shine at social gatherings—or want to avoid the tiresome routine of domestic or business duties—

So they duck into the hole of "sick headaches"—"indigestion attacks"—"sinking spells"—and thus make their get-away.

They are not consciously dishonest in doing this.

They think they are sick, and they ARE sick. They have such a great desire to avoid unpleasant responsibilities that they have actually manufactured a condition of sickness as an escape.

If suddenly some attractive opportunity presented itself they would speedily cast off their sickness and come out of their holes just as a rabbit comes out of his hole when danger has passed.

This, of course, does not apply to all forms of sickness but it does cover many forms of escape-sickness which we are beginning to recognize.

Other rabbit-people find different means of escape.

"I love Joe but I can't marry him," says Marion, "for it would just break mother's heart if I left her."

Marion thinks this is an honest statement and many people applaud her for her devotion. But the truth is that Marion is afraid of marriage. She has been a "mother's girl" for so long that she dreads to go out into life and assume normal adult responsibilities So she makes her escape through a sentimental alibi.

"I'd sure like to take that job and go out on the road," says Bill "but you know how it is with the wife. She can't bear to be left alone."

Bill also is making an escape He's a lazy customer and the thought of long, uncomfortable trips to strange territories does not appeal to his sluggish nature. So he uses the wife as an excuse.

Excuses generally work—if you want to escape life it isn't hard to do so. But one pays a heavy price for such immunity. If you pass life up, life will pass you up.

Marion is going to be a soured old maid ten years from now. Bill is going to wonder peevishly why he never had a chance like other fellows.

Life doesn't stop to coax those who wish to avoid her. She wastes no time dragging rabbits out of their holes. Her gifts are only for those who face her in the open.

Don't be a rabbit!

Don't keep an escape handy.

Force yourself to accept new experiences, dare strange adventures, meet difficult challenges Face life!

Day by Day Abroad

By O. O. McINTYRE

AT Sea—Fog as thick as pea soup today. And every three minutes the croak of the horn—like a giant bull frog. A storm gives a warning but a ship in the fog has the helplessness of a blindfolded man creeping toward a precipice. The deck is a blurry mist, and after apologizing to several posts, I left it flat.

In the writing room I came u, a the trail of something or other. An abandoned letter head contained this feminine scrawl: "Boo[illegible] baby —is oo tumin for oo itaum Bright Eyes for itsy-bitsy cocktail at 5. Booful—" and then it e'ed abruptly. Probably one of those misunderstood-at-home bunnands aboard

While nibbling the end of a pen —I can never think of a soul to write to on a ship—a silver-h ired gentleman with black pince-nez asked for my blotter as prelude to conversation. He has something to do with diamond mines in Kimberly and wanted me to look at a prospectus. He didn't kn ' I'm a Scotch boy.

Today I went shopping right smack in the middle of the ocean. As you've probably heard at least twice, a great liner is a floating city. One may shop f a variety of little stores for everything from perfume to fur coats. There are barbers, manicurists, doctors, a dentist, masseurs, gymnasiums, stenographers and notaries public.

There is a movie show every day, the benefit concert with usually remarkable talent, tennis squash, a swimming pool and the usual variety of deck games and professional boxing. Tea, dancing and cabaret. Also Catholic, Protestant and Christian Science religious services.

On the top deck is a kennel for dogs in charge of a veterinary. Small dogs are permitte[illegible] American railroads could stimulate much good will by observing the same tolerance transatlantic lines show household pet[illegible] many Americans do their travel[illegible] there for this reason.

There are some 20 dogs, a pet fox, two marmosets and a variety of birds aboard. And down in the steerage an old fellow, who could match whiskers with Trader Horn and have enough left over to stuff a pillow, has a pet lizard he is reported to carry in his beard. I must drop [illegible]wn.

LAST night I sat until very late on top deck near the prow. The ocean inspires introspection that is a bit saddening. Seamen are always taciturn and usually of a religious bent. They enjoy solitude—the sea is sufficient companionship. In the starless gloom there seemed to be much whispering and wraithlike whorls of queer arabesques. O, Min! Every mariner "hears voices" and "sees things." I know that after two hours of this seclusion in the luminous void I was tremendously moved by some thing unexplainable, resolved to be a better boy, write more often to the folks and quit talking back to traffic cops. Nothing can make a man feel so dreadfully unimportant as an ocean.

RENE GASNIER, the steward, is a pocket edition of Montague Glass His memory is astounding. Once he has met you, he can years later recall your name, when you made your last voyage with him, the condition of the weather, and doubtless the size of your tip.

IMPORTANT passengers are summoned in a grand manner to the captain's office for consultation. The captain rarely drinks more than a polite sip as a solution. He is a fellow of deep learning and a linguist. Of all the highly specialized ceilings his is by far remarkable. There is no sea law a man must vo down with his ship. It is merely a custom—an acknowledging and tragic bow to defeat.

ONE runs out of things to do on a ship. A wardrobe does has a squeaking hinge. When the door flans the effect is that of a slate pencil drawn through [illegible] teeth I spent an hour oiling and tightening it up, but I'm not a hinge man. It squeaks on.

THE exuberance of the French is appealing. The steward rapped at the door in a manner that made me glance nervously at the life belt He wanted me to go on deck I went. The fog had lifted and a radiant rainbow was slowly arching the heavens. He wanted me to see it come up.

I HAVE seen almost everything else come up on this voyage. So who miss a rainbow?

ANCIENT ELEPHANTS

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE soil of Utah has yielded the skeleton of a mammoth (Elephas primigenius) the "hairy mammoth" of geological fame, from a gravel pit in a terrace of the ancient Lake Bonneville, which in prehistoric days covered that part of the land. Perhaps the most characteristic American elephant was the mastodon, of which so many remains have been found in New York State and other parts of the East. But the mammoth is the beast that used to be known to the ancient cavemen of Europe, who drew its huge form in life-like portraiture on the walls of some of their home caverns.

Now we have striking proof that this giant companion of early European men was inhabitant of the western continent at the same time that he was exercising the artistic genius of the cave dwellers of the old world. The intensely interesting question that remains to be answered is whether man, too, was here with him. Some of those who ought tot be authorities say "yes," but others say "no." But if the mammoth, who is not by nature a navigator, could get here, why could not man? If so strange and unwieldly a beast was world-wide in distribution during the glacial age, why should it be regarded as inferentially probably that a far more active and mobile companion was confined to a single half of the globe?

Anyway, if the mammoth preceded man in America, he recorded a story which can quite easily be read without the aid of cavern pictures. This particular specimen, found near Payson, Utah, last September, has left a remarkable history in the ancient clays and gravels where he died and was buried by nature. Only a part of him was found, as described by George H. Hanson, of the Brigham Young University, who supervised his disinterment. That part includes two well-preserved, spirally shaped tusks, a lower jaw, some rib bones and two legs with their feet. The strange thing is that these parts were preserved because in the burial they happened to be embedded in a bed of fine clay. Above this bed, 15 feet thick, was a layer of "almost blood-red gravels," and below it a bed of coarse grain sands. And so much of the skeleton as projected into the red gravel above or the coarse sand beneath was completely oxidized and so lost, while the section between was preserved in the clay.

But listen to the story told by his tusks. The left tusk is six feet long, curved and terminates in a sharp tip. The right tusk is only five feet five inches, being much worn off at the end. This tells of the creature's life. He had dug hard for his living along the shores, probably swamps, of that now vanished lake. Prof. Hanson says it has been observed among the African elephants of the present day that almost invariably they wear down the right tusk by digging. A curious example, one might remark, of "right-handedness" in an animal below the human. Hitherto, right-handedness has been regarded as a specially human characteristic. Some men are left-handed, and so, perhaps, are some elephants. But this ancient individual followed the rule of the majority of his kind.

It is estimated that he lived 20,000 years ago. He had at least one contemporary of his own race, one of whose hind legs, 6½ feet long, was found in another gravel pit two miles away.

But the life story of the earth is stretched so vastly beyond the beginnings of all recorded and monumental history by these ancient elephants of Utah that Egypt and Adam no longer seem or imposing antiquity.
